DELORAS GRAY

3 BOYS ACCUSED BY GIRL HELD

Three youths who, it was testified, seized Delores Gray, 22, of 3001 Elsinore place, as she walked in Wharton street, between South Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, were held for court today by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court on charges of felonious assault.

The youths were Frank Jendrewski, 16; Frank Dziekonski, 17, and his brother, Edward, 16, all of 62 South Sixteenth street.

The girl struggled with her assailants and was about to elude their grasps when a police radio cruiser arrived, it was testified. Officers in the car arrested the trio.

Cyrena Van Gordon To Wed Millionaire

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Cyrena Van Gordon, mezzo-soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will wed Howard Dunham Smith, multi-millionaire, of New York and San Francisco, some time this month, it was revealed today.

It will be the second marriage for the opera star. Twelve years ago she eloped with Dr. Shirley Munns, Chicago larynx specialist. This marriage ended in a divorce last August.

Mercury Drop to 20 Predicted Tonight

Another touch of winter is scheduled for Pittsburgh tonight and tomorrow. The mercury will dip to near 20 tonight, according to the local weather observer. By tomorrow night the most severe of the cold weather should pass Pittsburgh, it was said. Fair weather is predicted.

Mills Appointment Waits Senate Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The names of Ogden L. Mills to be secretary of the Treasury and Arthur A. Ballantine to replace him as undersecretary were sent to the Senate today by President Hoover.

VOTE JURY UNDER LOCK

Alpert Takes Stand for Prosecution in Trial of Schad, McBride, Walsh

Frank Alpert, an assessor, pleaded no defense today as five co-defendants, including Constable Paul Walsh, C. J. McBride and George J. Schad, were placed on trial in Criminal Court on charges of a vote conspiracy.

The jury was ordered locked up while the trial is not in session.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced Alpert would testify for the prosecution. He was called as the first witness in the case.

Walsh, son of the police superintendent; McBride, secretary of the Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes, and Schad, former chairman of the board, and the other two are accused of conspiring to have 900 tax receipts issued and voted at the September primary. The others are Saul Klein, battalion fire chief, and Samuel L. Ramsey, assistant chief clerk for the board.

Alpert testified that, given orders to "write up" the First Ward in an additional assessment book by his superior, Ramsey, he was given some of the names by Walsh.

Each of the five defendants had his own lawyer as the trial proceeded before Visiting Judge Davis W. Henderson, of Fayette County, with a jury of three women and nine men.

The taking of testimony began after Judge Davis had refused a defense motion to quash the indictment.

SMITH'S STAND AIDS GARNER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The contest for the Democratic presidential nomination is now wide open.

This was the political reaction in Washington today to Al Smith's announcement that he is a receptive candidate for renomination.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders interpreted Smith's statement as meaning just about what it said—that the "Happy Warrior" of 1928 will consent to be drafted in 1932, but on no account will he make a serious effort to corral delegates, nor will he make anything like a campaign to bring about his own renomination.

The candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt has been sweeping

To Cure Hoarding Revive Prosperity, Says W. R. Hearst

OF ALL THE FEEBLE and futile messages which have emanated from the White House in regard to the Hoover depression, the recent pronouncement against hoarding is undoubtedly the most feeble and the most futile.

Everybody knows that hoarding is due to alarm on the part of the public concerning the safety of their jobs or their bank deposits, or their income from investments, or concerning anything which constitutes a menace to their means of existence in these precarious times.

But Mr. Hoover, in discussing prevailing conditions, sententiously declares that confidence will restore prosperity.

Unfortunately Mr. Hoover has shown the same "abysmal ignorance" in regard to economics that he has exhibited in regard to the nation's defense, or any other matter upon which he has expressed his prescribed opinion.

BUT ASSUMING EVEN that confidence will restore prosperity; nevertheless, Mr. Hoover must admit that it is difficult for a man without a job and with a needy family dependent upon him to be exuberantly confident, or for a man whose income has been cut to one-fifth or one-tenth of what it was, and who has had to sacrifice his home and take his children out of school, to be as smilingly confident as he was before Mr. Hoover became President.

Over seven million citizens of this country who are able and willing to work are out of employment.

How can the public exhibit any especial confidence over that?

Two thousand banks failed in the United States during the past year of the Hoover black panic.

What is there about that to give the public an excess of confidence?

STOCKS HAVE FALLEN to little or nothing, dividends have been cut or eliminated, wages are being reduced even by the government, and at Mr. Hoover's suggestion.

More men are being laid off every day; more families are being made dependent.

Where and from what is the public going to get the sublime confidence which Mr. Hoover so optimistically recommends as the solution of all their problems?

If Mr. Hoover wants the public to be confident, would it not be well for him to give them something concrete to be confident about?

Superheated atmosphere in presidential messages will not make the public confident.

EXHAUSTING ALL THE nation's resources in giving first aid to foreign countries, and in financing speculative financiers in our own country, will not give the public confidence.

Continual evidences of unresourceful apprehension on the part of the Chief Executive of our nation will not stimulate public confidence; nor will lack of independence and of intelligent initiative on the part of the Democratic Congress.

What is needed to restore confidence is not merely words but WORKS.

What is needed to revive prosperity is thoughtful attention to the problems of the people, and particularly PATRIOTIC concentration on the requirements of OUR OWN PEOPLE.

What is needed is immediate recommendation on the part of the Executive, and prompt action on the part of the Congress to give work to the unemployed, to put money into circulation, to stimulate trade and invigorate industry.

Until such action is taken, there will be no confidence and no CAUSE for confidence.

MR. HOOVER HAS WASTED the three years of his official life in empty utterances and meaningless gestures.

If Mr. Hoover had advocated the five billion dollar bond issue for public works even one year ago, he would not now be going out of office with a

GIRL FOUND HACKED TO DEATH

Body of Child Missing For Week Discovered in Vacant House Near Home

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8. (AP.)—Attacked and hacked to death, the body of 7-year-old Dorothy Lutz, who had been missing since Wednesday, was found today in a second floor room of a vacant house a few doors from her own home.

The body was found by two policemen who were among several hundred police and firemen engaged in an intensive search of the North Philadelphia neighborhood where the child lived with her widowed mother.

The child's head had been almost severed, presumably by an ax, police said. The body lay on the floor of the bare bedroom.

The place had been taken over by the city last week for default in the payment of taxes. A Negro family moved out of the place last Thursday, they said. Efforts are being made to learn where the family went.

Dorothy's mother, Mrs. Florence Lutz, collapsed when she learned the child had been slain. She had held to the hope that the girl had wandered from home and been taken in by some persons who had been afraid to report to police for fear they would be charged with kidnaping.

A 58-year-old man who was arrested Saturday on a complaint that he was disorderly in the vicinity of a home for children, was immediately subjected to questioning about Dorothy's death.

The child's father, Peter Lutz, a jaintor in an apartment house, died three weeks ago. Shortly after his death Mrs. Lutz moved to her present home at 1007 North American street, and her father took up residence with her. Dorothy had not yet registered at a new school since the moving. She was an only child, a young brother having died two years ago.

PARKING LAW 'TEETH' URGED

Bad news for motorists emanated today from Public Safety Director James M. Clark's office.

Clark announced that he would ask City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt to draw up an ordinance which would mean a more effective punishment for drivers who park their cars illegally.

The Director said that since the police towing of parked cars halted last month, in accordance with a new state law, illegal parking has increased greatly. And he added:

"Tagging autos means little or nothing, as most of the tags are being ignored or 'fixed.'"

Two Lodges Cited In Liquor Sales

Temporary injunctions, prohibiting the sale of liquor, were granted today by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, against the Fraternal Order of Eagles, No. 577, and Charles Davis, steward, at Greensburg, and the Loyal Order of Moose, No. 95, and William Prentice, steward, Latrobe. Final hearings will be held March 1.

Hit-Run Charged In Injury to Dog

For the first time in the history of Central Police Station, a man was arrested today as a hit-and-run driver after he is alleged to have struck a stray dog at Penn avenue and Stanwix street. C. N. Simon, 419 Glen Arden drive, will be given a hearing tomorrow in Traffic Court.

BEHIND THE JAPANESE LINES ON WOOSUNG CREEK, Feb. 8.—(12:30 p. m.)—The bombardment of the village of Woosung and the square-walled Chinese town of Paoshan continues with terrific destruction and loss of life today.

Japanese cruisers and destroyers, in a nunrelenting and unending parade, are steaming slowly close into the shore, firing salvos of eight-inch guns on short level range into houses and buildings and factories on the shore.

All morning I have been watching this terrific destruction from close range. The superimposed dark battle-grey turrets swing ponderously to broadside positions, bringing shore dwellings to within 50 yards of the ominous black muzzles of the eight-inch guns.

There is a burst of vivid orange-colored flame as the deadly missiles depart. Wham!—second-story cupolas, gargoyles and red tiles lift themselves skyward in a cloud of brick, dust, splinters and debris.

A fog of acrid-smelling yellow smoke-like cordite slides off the decks as the following salvo lets go. Close into the shore a disabled Japanese destroyed is aground, listed far over to one side, with the foremast tipped at a drunken angle and a cloud of smoke emreging from the black stacks.

Meanwhile, Chinese have repulsed a desperate onslaught by Japanese land forces. Wave on wave, Japanese bluejackets swept down on Chinese entrenchments along Woosung Creek this morning and wave on wave they were thrown back.

Five hundred Japanese were led into a trap and moved down by machine guns, Chinese officials claimed, and Chinese troops hurled back other forces as a terrific battle continued in and around Shanghai.

Chinese artillery droppeds shells into the Japanese section of the International Settlement, one landing near an American hospital, after Chinese had warned Americans and other foreigners.

Floyd Gibbons watched the bombardment of Woosung village and the town of Paoshan by Japanese warships, causing terrific destruction and heavy loss of life.

The United States government announced it would oppose Japan's counter-proposal for peace, involving the militarization of Chinese ports and reopening the question of partition of China.

U. S. May Send More Warships to China

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Secretary of the Navy Adams today stated that more American warships will be sent to Shanghai if the situation there warrants additional protection for American lives and property.

500 KILLED BY CHINESE GUNNERS

Tokio Troops Trapped and Slain; Artillery Opens Fire Against Settlement

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9—(Tuesday.)—(AP.)—As the firing across Chapei died out early this morning, as it usually does a little after midnight, Chinese headquarters announced that a machine gun section had mowed down 500 Japanese during the day's engagement.

It appeared that the Chinese had led the enemy into a trap, lying quiet behind their sandbag barricades while the Japanese pushed out an advance column.

They let the column get deep into Chinese territory, then opened up on them in front and on both flanks. It was a slaughter.

Only a handful of survivors were able to get out, Chinese headquarters said.

Chinese Shells Explode Near U. S. Hospital

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9—(1 A. M.)—(INS.)—Chinese artillery hurled 30 shells into the Japanese defense area of the International Settlement early today. One exploded near St. Luke's Hospital, an American institution, at present crowded with wounded Chinese civilians.

Three of the Chinese shells landed on the Hongkew Police Station. Two fell in the Whangpoo River near the Japanese vessels Ataka and Izumi, the flagships, respectively, of Rear Admiral Shiosawa and Admiral Nomura, commanding Japanese naval forces here.

Quo Tai-Chi, a member of the Chinese Nationalist government, who recently arrived here to survey the situation, delivered a verbal warning to United States Consul Edwin Cunningham that American and other foreign residents of the Japanese defense areas be evacuated as speedily as possible.

The Chinese artillerymen turned their guns on the International Settlement only a little more than two hours after Mayor Wu Te-Chen, of Shanghai, had addressed a circular letter to all foreign consular officials, warning them the Chinese government could not be held responsible for any damage to foreign life and property if the Japanese persisted in using the International Settlement as a base of operations against the Chinese.

U. S. Marine Killed By Comrade in China

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The Marine Corps' first casualty on the Shanghai front came today from within the corps itself.

Pvt. Julius Merz, of Los Angeles, died as a result of "accidental discharge of standard service pistol in the hands of Pvt. Phillip W. Guernsey," Col. R. S. Hooker, commanding the 4th Regiment of Marines at Shanghai, reported to the Navy Department.

Smith Greets Roosevelt At Voorhis Funeral

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, and Alfred E. Smith, who has announced he will accept the nomination if it is given him, met today at the bier of John R. Voorhis, 102-year-old grand sachem of Tammany Hall.

As he and the other Tammany leaders filed out of Greenwich Presbyterian Church after the funeral, Smith leaned down and laid his hand on the arm of Gov. Roosevelt, still seated in the front pew.

He bent lower and whispered something in Roosevelt's ear, at which Roosevelt looked up at him soberly and nodded. Then Smith passed on.

"What did Al say?"

"He said, 'How do you do,' just as anyone would."

Then with a smile, Gov. Roosevelt added:

fence of the $ 000 000 power plant built by the Skoda works, prominently flying a Czechoslovakian flag high on the chimney.

Japanese destroyers and cruisers, finishing an upstream run, make a full speed run by the Consulate opposite the United States destroyer Barker. As the Japanese warships came about, their guns bellow from firing and flashes of red bore directly and repeatedly on the American warship 100 yards distant.

Yesterday's protest on this river sight was received with cold politeness by the Japanese this morning. In making the turn opposite the Barker I saw the Japanese unload gun pieces and test the guns and engines until the turn is completed, and then reload and train the guns once more on the Chinese forces and slowly steam downstream, renewing the bombardment.

FIRES BREAK OUT

In the five or ten-mile triangular area between the Yangtze and the Whangpoo rivers immediately to the rear of Woosung, area dozens of fires have broken out until the flat lowland is covered with a heavy pall of smoke underlying today's heavy mist and light rain.

I am sending this message back by courier on the military road to the Skoda power station from which place it will be taken by motor boat across the river to the Texaco plant at Gough Island and then sent from there by telephone—I hope—to John Goette, International News Service staff correspondent in Shanghai.

From the decks of the destroyer Barker, I watched the attack of the Japanese bluejackets dashed off by the indominatable Chinese.

A mist and light rain obscured my view of the struggle, but I could sense its deadliness and I knew that the retreating waves of Bluejackets left many of their comrades beneath the Chinese parapets.

The cannon of the forts were silent. They had been beaten down by 48 hours of previous ferocious bombardment. But the troops within the forts were ready. For 15 minutes the bombardment continued. Then came the attack; the repulse; the second attack and again the Japs were beaten off.

At 6:30 a. m. the naval guns were again brought into play. This time the bombardment lasted 40 minutes. The first cannonade was but 15 minutes in duration, but the Japs had now tasted the courage of the poorly-equipped troops defending the fort and they wanted to give them no place for a toe-hold.

Shells were rained on the Chinese trenches along the railroad embankment facing the Whangpoo and the east bank of Woosung Creek. This bombardment came from the destroyers in the Whangpoo River and the cruisers in the Yangtze.

This concerted bombardment worked terrible havoc among the defenders.

Railroad ties and rails and huge geysers of mud and earth were shot into the air.

70 Feared Frozen In Snowbound Train

TOKIO WATCHES SOVIET TROOPS

TOKIO, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The foreign office today was fully aware of the Soviet troop movements at Vladivostok, Siberia, near the Manchurian border, following an official report of the Japanese consul there.

He reported movements resembling those of war time with the massing of tens of thousands of troops and the shipping of great munitions supplies.

The Japanese official was inclined to attribute the movements to the Soviet desire to impress Japan with her strength, particularly in view of the Japanese occupation of Harbin and the Soviet maneuvers against the 100,000 white Russians living in Manchuria.

The consul said he did not believe the troop movements were directed against Japan.

Tokio also heard, although the foreign office was without confirmation, that the city was under martial law. It was known many thousands of white Russians had been arrested.

4 Japanese Fliers Killed in Crashes

TOKIO, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Three army officers and a sergeant were killed and three airplanes were wrecked in two separate accidents today.

Near Nagoya two army planes carrying three officers collided in midair and crashed. The sergeant was killed when his engine failed on a long-distance flight and his plane fell 4,000 feet.

U. S. Gets Japan's Co-operation Note

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Assurances that Japan would cooperate with the other powers in maintaining peace and order in the International Settlement here was given to United States Consul Edwin Cunningham today by Japanese Consul General Murai. The assurances were given in reply to a communication addressed to the Japanese Consul on February 4.

British Peace Move Rejected by Japan

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Peace negotiations instituted by Rear Admiral Kelly, commanding British naval units here, failed tonight, owing the Japanese demand that the Chinese withdraw 20 miles from Shanghai. Kelly proposed that the Chinese withdraw five miles.

CRISIS UNITES NANKING

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 9.—(Tuesday)—(AP.)—Dispatches from Nanking today disclosed that the government, temporarily functioning at Honanfu, had succeeded in uniting the several political factions in the face of Japan's activities here.

The country has been divided into four military zones with Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek co-ordinating all commands.

Chang Hsiao-Liang commands Hopei, Feng Yu-Hsiang is in charge of Shantung and Chekiang, Hanfuchu has been split into two sections with Ho Ying-Chin and Chen Ming-Hsu in charge of the southeast portion, the southwest under Chen Chi-Tao and Li Tsung-Jen.

Army, Navy Officers 'Muzzled,' House Told

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Army and Navy officers are muzzled by their superiors, Representative Cochran (Dem.), of Missouri, chairman of the House Expenditures Committee in charge of the bill for creation of a single department of national defense, charged today.

The fact that officers are afraid to express their real opinions in public makes it difficult for his committee to get all the facts necessary in considering the measure, he added.

LEAGUE FREES CHINA REPORT

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—The League of Nations Council made public late today an eight-page report on the Sino-Japanese hostilities at Shanghai, drafted by a committee composed of consular officials of the leading powers.

The report gives no opinion on the rights or wrongs of the controversy that led to the outbreak of fighting, but reviews the history of events since January 18.

It concedes that the Chinese boycott of Japanese products "was seriously damaging to Japanese business, thus causing violent incidents."

Chinese Refugees Trapped in Blizzard

HANKOW, China, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Untold suffering among hundreds of thousands of Chinese refugees in the middle Yangtze valley was caused today by a blizzard blowing east across Hankow.

The refugees, who had come into the valley from many points, were entirely without shelter, most of them were lightly clothed and provisions were scarce.

BRITAIN, FRANCE CLASH OVER ARMS CUT

Sir John Simon Attacks Tardieu Suggestion for League of Nations Army

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Great Britain and France clashed pointedly at the world disarmament conference today over two distinctly separate theories about abolishing war.

Sir John Simon, British spokesman, presented Great Britain's plan for disarmament including abolition of submarines and gas and chemical warfare, at the same time sharply criticizing the proposal of France for arming the League of Nations. He said:

"That the peace of the world is to be secured by preparing for war is no longer believed by anybody, for recent history manifestly disproves it."

LIMITS SCOPE

Sir John also insisted that the scope of the proposals discussed be kept within the field of the disarmament convention drawn up beforehand. He declared the British proposals remained within this field.

Andre Tardieu, French minister of war and head of the French delegation, who proposed the French armament plan last week, declared that until the League is armed there can be no peace in the world. He spoke immediately following Sir John. He denied a suggestion that the French plan was merely a maneuver.

The conference must work entirely within the terms of the League covenant, he said, and the nations must be ready to join France in giving mutual pledges of assistance against aggressors before a real reduction of armaments can be realized, Tardieu said.

REFERS TO GERMANY

His words had a special reference to Germany and her defeated allies. Chancellor Heinrich Bruening of Germany sat in the conference during the discussion and was the only delegate who had a copy of the British spokesman's speech, which was written only last night.

Armaments, Sir John Simon said, are useless instruments of world peace.

M. Tardieu said:

"Criticize our plan, gentlemen. Discuss it, present plans which you think are better. You will find us conciliatory, under the sole reservation that we will remain unshakably devoted to the fundamental basis or organization of peace because we are convinced that disarmament without organization would be giving a brutal and unjust encouragement to numbers and to technical skill."

Sir John Simon declared the British government would accept the disarmament convention as the basis of the scope of the conference, thus dissociating himself from the French project.

record of unrelieved adversity such as no President has ever had.

He would be remaining in office as the apostle of prosperity restored through his own constructive policies.

This is not a visionary statement. It is the consensus of opinion of all the scientific economists.

PROSPERITY MUST be built from the bottom.

It must be based upon the welfare of the workers.

It must be dug out of the ground, hoed out of the furrows, ploughed out of the fields, woven out of the web and woof of the loom, hammered out of iron, beaten out of bronze, crushed out of the rock.

It must be gathered from the farms and the mines and fabricated in the factories.

Prosperity must be painstakingly and painfully constructed by those who labor in the sweat of their brows.

The wealth which our statesmen burned up in war, and our high financiers so recklessly threw to the four winds of Europe, must with bent backs and strained muscles be laboriously rebuilt by the workers.

THE FIRST DUTY of this government, the first duty of any government, is to give the workers WORK.

The workers will give trade to the shops and orders to the industries.

The workers will put money into circulation. They have to do so to live.

The workers will pay rents.

The workers will buy shoes and clothes for their families.

The expenditure of the workers will supply the basis for the whole superstructure of prosperity.

The welfare of the workers will be the rock on which wise statesmen will build our house of prosperity; and the winds will blow and the rain will beat upon that house and it will not fall, because it is built upon a ROCK.

BUT A HOUSE WHICH IS built upon the shifting sands of politics, of vain words and timid evasions, of wasteful dissipation of national resources, in favors to the favored, is built upon the sands, and the winds of adversity will blow, and the rain will beat upon that house, and it will FALL, and great will be the fall thereof.

You gentlemen in public place, whether in the executive or the legislative branch of government, must proceed without further unnecessary discussion and postponement to build our economic house upon the rock.

You must lay your foundations strong and straight.

You must restore prosperity in the only way it can be restored—by giving work to the workers.

Otherwise you are not worthy to hold the position you occupy and if the people do their duty to themselves and their country at the next election, you will not continue to occupy those positions.

U. S. TO OPPOSE DISARMING OF CHINA PORTS

Washington Sees Tokio Plan As Reopening Question Of Partition of Nation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The United States looks upon the proposal to demilitarize Chinese ports as reopening the question of the partition of China and will oppose such a move.

This position became clear at the State Department today as officials gave their attention to unofficial reports of the position outlined in Tokio. Officially the question has not yet been brought to the attention of this government.

Japan Would Make All Shanghai Neutral Zone

TOKIO, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Japan today offered to the world a plan which, if accepted by other nations interested in China, she believes will solve the Shanghai controversy.

The plan, announced by the foreign office shortly before noon, calls for the establishment of a neutral zone throughout Shanghai under the control of foreign powers and prohibiting participation by Chinese soldiers.

Under the plan four other leading cities of China—Hankow, Tientsin, Canton and Tsingtao—would be zoned off similarly. Extra-territoriality, the treaty right of foreigners in China to be tried by consular courts of their own nationality, would be maintained in the five cities, but abolished outside them.

At the same time Japan revealed she intends to establish a similar plan in Manchuria, except that Japan would be the sole controlling power. She intends to eliminate entirely the Chinese soldiery from Manchuria, she revealed.

5 GO ON TRIAL IN BOND DEAL

Five officers of the American Bond and Mortgage Company, of New York and Chicago, went on trial in Federal Court today on charges of misusing the mails. They are accused of making false representations in the sale of second mortgage bonds of the Mayflower Hotel Company, of Washington. Some of these bonds were reported sold in Western Pennsylvania.

A sixth defendant, Hayden W. Ward, vice president of the bond company, pleaded no defense just before the trial started before Judge Nelson McVicar. A seventh defendant, Daniel J. O'Brien, manager of the Mayflower, has been granted a separate trial.

The defendants, all said to be related, are William J. Moore, president; Charles B. Moore and Charles C. Moore, vice presidents; Kenneth W. Moore, assistant secretary; Harald A. Moore, secretary-treasurer.

AUTOIST HITS, KIDNAP GIRL

Police throughout Allegheny County today were asked to start a search for an unidentified motorist, whose car struck Rose Yankovitch, 5, near her home in Russellton about 1 p. m.

Witnesses said the driver leaped from his car, threw the child into it and drove rapidly away.

Margaret Stewart, telephone operator at Curtisville, said a check of nearby hospitals showed the girl had not been taken to any of them.

Police were checking the possibility that the driver had taken the girl to a doctor's office in some nearby community.

STEVENSON FOR HOME LOAN BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Enactment of the federal home loan bank bill to spur home-building, was advocated today by L. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, as a means of attracting money from hiding places.

Attending the White House anti-hoarding conference, Stevenson, who is president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said the measure would provide means of sound investment. He predicted "enormous sums" now on deposit or hoarded away would be released from the channels of trade.

He will speak on its behalf at a congressional hearing on the measure February 15.

Colman, Out at 10, Held in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Ronald Colman, American screen star, appeared on the Shanghai front today, positive that Shanghai police mean business when they enforce a 10 o'clock curfew hour.

Hollywood nights are not observed here, Colman learned when he was brought into court for being out after 10 p. m. He was released, however, with a warning. Colman is stopping here on a round-the-world tour to visit an uncle, Percy Colman.

$2,000 Bond Posted For Harry Bunting

Bond of $2,000 was posted today for Harry Bunting, former clerk in the county delinquent tax office, as the grand jury prepared its recommendation on the charge of embezzlement involving $18,000 against him. The bondsman was George D. Sells, of 337 Breading avenue, Ben Avon. Bunting, ill, is in Mercy Hospital.

Charles Shempp, of the Clerk of Court's office, went to the hospital, where Bunting signed the bond.

U. S. AIR FLEET IN SHAM WAR

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Honolulu was recovering today from the force of a smashing attack delivered by the aerial armada of the United States war forces—but it was all in fun—part of the annual "war maneuvers."

The surprise attackers sought to capture the island.

One hundred miles at sea two "black" submarines attached to defense forces launched a counter attack on the airplane carrier, Saratoga, causing "serious damage," and destroying the 13 airplanes that remained on board.

Washington Busy Over Chinese Crisis

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Officials of the Japanese embassy and Chinese legation are working overtime these days as their nations clash at arms in China.

Officials of the State, War and Navy Departments also frequently have to remain at their desks at night to study ways of taking care of American interests.

Shanghai Tamed by War, Yanks Camp in 'Coney'

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—There warefare hereabouts ought to make a lot of changes in Hollywood, for Shanghai no longer is the "toughest town on the China coast."

The waterfront dives so familiar to movie fans are not to be found, even if they ever existed, and the cabarets where tourists used to cut loose have suspended operation "for the duration."

Everywhere are soldiers and refugees—in the cabarets, the clubs, the public buildings, even in the apartment houses.

American soldiers recently brought over from Manila are quartered in what used to be Shanghai's Coney Island, an acre of playground where the boys off duty can look at the merry-go-round, slide down the shoot-the-chute and amuse themselves by looking at the chair where the Chinese fat lady used to sit.

But the fat lady, the bearded woman, the snake charmer and the fortune tellers decamped long ago.

Over in the Majestic Hotel, famous in normal times for its summer garden and its jazz band, 1,600 Scottish soldiers have the enormous dance floor to themselves.

South Sea Beauty To Be Fairbanks' Leading Lady

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—When Douglas Fairbanks goes to the South Seas to film his next picture he will try to find a native girl to be his leading lady.

But just in case there is no native girl beautiful enough for him to rescue while the cameras grind, he said he will take a Hollywood actress with him as an emergency standby. He is making film tests now of several girls. The star leaves February 17 on the oil tanker Makura for Tahiti.

Bayonetted Child, 3, Held As Chinese 'Sniper'

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—An international investigation committee was appointed by the consular body today to handle the case of 117 wounded, ill and underfed Chinese men, women and children turned over to them by Japanese authorities, who had arrested them on sniping charges.

The Chinese present a sorry sight. They had been detained first at a Japanese club and then kept aboard a lighter beside a Japanese warship.

Some had not eaten for several days, while many were suffering from long-unattended bullet and bayonet wounds.

The group included the "number one boy" of the Palace Hotel staff, as well as a bayonet-wounded 3-year-old child. There were 81 men, 21 women and 15 children in all.

'BABY FACE' COLL, GANGSTER, SLAIN IN PHONE BOOTH

BODY RIDDLED BY BULLETS AS 3 LOOK ON

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Vincent Coll, New York's boy gangster chief, was shot and killed today.

Trapped within the narrow walls of a telephone booth, the youth, who at 23 had the reputation of the most ruthless of New York gang leaders, was riddled with bullets poured from a sub-machine gun in the hands of a rival gunman.

Gangster Coll

"Baby Face" Coll, as police much to his disgust, called him because of a dimple in his chin, paid the full price of a reckless gesture with his life. Despite the feud with Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimers mobsters, he went out unarmed and without a bodyguard.

Coll had just entered the telephone booth in a West Twenty-third street drug store when three men alighting from an automobile came in. Two stood guard at the door. The third advanced to the telephone.

'KEEP COOL'

He admonished two clerks and Dr. Leo J. Latz, of Chicago, who sat at the soda fountain:

"Be quiet and keep cool."

With astounding calmness, the executioner leveled his small submachine gun, known to the underworld as a "tommy-gat," at the glass of the closed door and poured a deadly hail of fire into the booth.

The glass shattered. In a moment, Coll, with perhaps 10 bullets in his body, crashed through the door and slumped down on the floor, dead.

Unperturbed, the assassin turned and walked out with his two companions. They sped off in an automobile, eluding pursuit by a policeman in a taxicab.

WIFE HYSTERICAL

Coll's wife, whom he married a month ago after his acquittal as a participant in the Harlem "baby massacre" in which 5-year-old Michael Vengalli was killed, walked into the drug store a few minutes after the shooting. She became hysterical.

Only a week ago Coll was said by police to have escaped assassination. Gunmen raided a Bronx apartment at which Coll adherents were making merry. Two men and a woman were killed and three persons injured.

In a way, his end was similar to that of Jack (Legs) Diamond, killed recently. Like Diamond, Coll was shot down while still flushed with a victory over the law. At the time of Diamond's murder, he said:

"I feel sorry for any one who is bumped off, especially when a guy is lucky enough to beat a trial—and so soon after acquittal."

Bridge to be Moved For Washington Fete

CUMBERLAND, Md., Feb. 8.—A covered bridge, 110 years old, now in use in Pennsylvania, is to be moved to Braddock Run, along the National highway, where Gen. Washington and Gen. Braddock crossed that stream during the French and Indian War as part of Cumberland's Washington bicentennial celebration. The bridge is on the site of the Thomas W. Koon dam at Fellowship Church, in Pennsylvania. Cumberland has set February 22, April 21 and July 3-4 for its Washington celebration. On the latter date there will be a caravan to Fort Necessity.

Ill, Mystery

DOROTHY GISH

RULING FAVORS TRUNK SLAYER

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 8.—The defense in the trunk murder trial of Mrs. Ruth Judd scored a victory today as Judge Howard Speakman ruled that he would include among his instructions a statement that the jury might bring in a special verdict of "not guilty by reason of insanity."

Arizona law does not specifically recognize this special verdict, which was written into California law several years ago.

The fate of Mrs. Judd was expected to be placed in the hands of the jury by night.

As the trial entered the last day of its third week, County Attorney G. A. Rodgers delivered a 20-minute summation of the prosecution's case against the slender young hospital secretary who confessed she shot Agnes Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson and shipped their bodies to Los Angeles.

Rodgers declared the facts of the murder were unquestioned and then attacked Mrs. Judd's defense of insanity.

Plane Burns While Being Refueled

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—(INS)—A 12-passenger tri-motored airplane of the Transamerican Airline Corporation was destroyed by fire at the city airport today shortly after it had arrived from Cleveland. Three mechanics re-fueling the big ship narrowly escaped injury when gasoline being poured into the tank caught fire apparently from static electricity.

'King's Henchmen' Riot; 20 Injured

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Twenty persons were injured yesterday in three clashes between Royalists, Socialists and Pacifists in the Latin quarter.

The trouble arose when members of the Royalist organization, "The King's Henchmen," tried to prohibit the sale of Socialist and Pacifist publications.

SCHOLL, SLAYER OF CHILDREN, DIES IN CELL

Life Term of Pittsburgh Preacher's Son Ends After 5 Years in Prison

International News Service.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Feb. 8.—Walter Scholl, 37, the son of a Pittsburgh minister, who killed his two children to aid him in a reconciliation with his wife, is dead in prison here.

Scholl died at the Indiana State Prison after having served a little less than five years of his life sentence.

KIDNAPED CHILDREN HERE

Scholl, was the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Scholl, the former a Seven Day Adventist Minister, who resided at 117 West Ohio street, North Side, when the crime was committed in March, 1927.

The two children had been living with their grandparents here until two weeks before Christmas in 1926 when they were kidnaped from the Mary J. Cowley school by their father.

When the children's bodies were discovered and Scholl arrested, it was not unexpected by the family, a sister, Mrs. Daniel Bihler, said at the time. She said her brother had written home declaring his intention of killing his wife, the children and himself.

RECALL WILD CAREER

Scholl had attended Allegheny High School and later Mt. Vernon Academy, Mt. Vernon, O. He always had been wild, according to members of the family, running away at the age of 12. At 17 he enlisted in the Army and served on the Mexican border.

A year later while in Pittsburgh he married Miss Marie Steffen, of East street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Steffen. His wife died of poison in New York and later Scholl married Miss Marguerite Gibbons, a social and juvenile worker in Chicago. He was later arrested on embezzlement charges in Los Angeles and after being released turned up in St. Louis, but disappeared a short time later.

Mrs. Bihler said that at one time Scholl wrote to his father for $1,000, saying he had killed his wife, but the father disbelieved the letter.

GUNMEN ROB 3 ON TROLLEY

Three armed and masked men held up an inbound Perrysville avenue street car early today at Ivory Stop, just inside the city limits, and escaped after robbing the motorman and two passengers.

The motorman, H. Linn, turned over $65 to one of the thieves, while the latter's companions took $5 from Otto J. Eckert, of Lunar street, and $7.50 from Joseph Matthews, of McKeesport, passengers.

The holdup occurred a short distance on the city side of the Keating barns, where Matthews is employed.

One of the robbers stood at the car step and when the trolley stopped to pick him up, he and his two companions leaped aboard. They had just taken their loot when a West View car approached. They fled.

Court Order Halts Detroit Beauty Show

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Highly coiffured and rouged models stood by impatiently today while their employers went to court seeking to dissolve a restraining order which halted the opening of the American Beauty Exposition, a scheduled side feature of the American Hairdressers Association now in convention here.

Evictions Jeered In Rent Strike

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—While a crowd of 500 persons, most of them women, booed and jeered, a city marshal and his crew of moving men, protected by 84 policemen, proceeded today with the eviction of tenants in a 40-family apartment house in Alerton avenue, the Bronx, where a rent strike has been in progress for several weeks.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID AT BIER OF DREYFUSS

'Czar' Landis Heads Notables Of Baseball World at Rites of Pirate Owner

The grief that Barney Dreyfuss' wife and daughter felt today was mixed with an appreciation of the tribute paid to him as they laid him to rest yesterday.

Into Rodef Shalom Synagogue at Fifth and Morewood avenues there crowded as cosmopolitan a gathering as has ever attended any of the thousands of ball games the late owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates sponsored.

There were, for example, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, czar of organized baseball, and George Pasquerelli, the Oakland newsboy who for years delivered Mr. Dreyfuss' papers.

NOTABLES ATTEND

Baseball notables from a dozen other cities were there, too, but predominant was the baseball fan. Hundreds passed the bier as it lay in state for two hours. Most of them had never met him; they knew him as Barney, the passionately interested owner of the club, who sat in the first row on the second tier of Forbes Field and was as keenly interested in every play as the youngest rookie.

As Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson talked about Barney Dreyfuss for 15 minutes, Mrs. Dreyfuss sat directly in front of the bier weeping silently, assuaged by the rabbi's tribute.

FINAL TRIBUTE

Commissioner Landis, John Heydler, Honus Wagner, Senator Frank J. Harris and countless others heard him say:

"The world has become better because of his standards of truth and righteousness.

"Nature did not give him a great stature, yet in this frail body there existed a heart and a mind that transcended his size. He made of his sport an exercise of the mind.

"Who that came in touch with Barney Dreyfuss did not feel the impact of sincerity? He spoke the truth naturally."

SCHOOLEY JURY CALLS BANKERS

Assemblyman Samuel J. Grenet and Congressman P. J. Sullivan today appeared before the grand jury investigating the administration of former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley's office.

After they left the witness room, District Attorney Andrew T. Park said two bankers would be subpenaed at once. They testified this afternoon.

It is believed the bankers, one from the North Side, one from downtown, brought in certain records which have to do with the testimony expected from Dr. F. H. Frederick, who has been too ill to appear.

Both of the politician-witnesses were understood to have been questioned concerning loans made by the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company, in which, it is charged, city funds were placed without sufficient security.

"Well, all I have to say is—38 years of public life have made me fat."

WEDDING PARTY AUTO HITS 2

The driver of a wedding party car was held by police today as the operator of the automobile which knocked down a traffic policeman and a woman at Sixth street and Liberty avenue shortly afternoon. Both were taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

Chornyak said the car, driven by William S. Giles, 24, of 4911 Gertrude street, was second in the line of a wedding party returning to the North Side. The first car, the officer said, coming down Liberty avenue, turned to Sixth street just before the light changed. In it were the bridegroom, John Burghart, 23, of 615 Chestnut street, and his bride, the former Anna Diel, 23, of 810 Anaheim street.

The second car, driven by Giles, Chornyak said, turned after the Liberty avenue traffic light flashed red, striking him and the woman.

Giles was arrested by Central Station police.

House Orders Quiz On Silver Question

ALLEN FREEDOM FAILS TO UNITE FAMILY

Girl's Hatred for Ill Father Undiminished; Plans to Earn Living as Model

By JEANETTE SMITS

International News Service.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 8.—Eddie Allen, flushed and tremulous after the most tremendous demonstration that ever followed an accused slayer's acquittal, today was gratefully preparing to resume his career as a "gentleman rider."

Rose Allen, forgiven by her brother for the damaging testimony she gave, declared she always will love Eddie, but is so stubbornly persistent in her hatred of the pitiful old father that she will not remain under the same roof with him.

Horace Allen, weak and shaken by the ordeal of anxious days and sleepless nights was stung by the coldness of his beautiful daughter.

VERDICT SCORED

Meanwhile Francis A. Donaldson, Jr., bitter against a verdict he considers based on "emotion and prejudice," declared that the law was not upheld when his son's death went unpunished.

Eager to resume the routine of his daily life, Allen tried hard today to paint a picture of a united family, even though he admitted Rose had gone away to stay with friends. After their touching reconciliation in Montgomery County courthouse, He said:

"I love my sister, and I want to forget the past. We'll go on just as we always have been. This trial never will be mentioned in our house.

"Forgive her? I've nothing to forgive. When she went on the witness stand, she told the truth. I wouldn't have Rose lie for me under any circumstances."

But Rose, who was hoisted by the very crowd that so ardently applauded her brother, did not join these two men who love her better than anyone else in the world. While they were enjoying a quiet Sunday dinner, she remained secluded in the home of Mrs. Arthur Pierce, in Sugartown, an exclusive suburb. She said:

"I don't know whether I will go back to my family permanently or not. I want to earn my own living, so I won't be dependent upon them. I may become a model in a dress shop which a friend of mine is opening.

GLAD AT ACQUITTAL

"Of course, I am glad that Eddie was acquitted. I always hoped nothing would happen to him. I love my brother very much, but I couldn't do anything except the one thing I did at the trial. I had to tell the truth."

While the little family was torn within, though father, daughter and son rejoiced over the "not guilty" verdict, the other father, whose boy never will return to him, protested vehemently the memory of Francis A. M. Donaldson III, victim of Eddie Allen's bullets. He said:

"The law, which is supposed to be for the protection of all, has not been upheld. The trial and its results have been a great shock to me.

"I still have, and my son's friends also have, unswerving loyalty to his memory as a gentleman, unafraid, killed on a mission of peace, and from that cannot be swerved by prejudiced opinion and a verdict caused by emotion."

Writers to Test Ban On Speech in Harlan

HARLAN, Ky., Feb. 8.—(INS)—A group of 10 New York writers en route to visit Harlan County "to test the right of free speech" and to bring food to starving miners, today telegraphed Sheriff John Henry Blair demanding protection.

The members of the party are John Henry Hammond, Jr., Waldo Frank, Edmund Wilson, Mary Heaton Vorse, Elsie Reed Mitchell, Malcolm Cowley, Harold Hickerson, Harold Holmes Owen, Polly Boyden and Lister M. Oak.

SMITH'S STAND HELD BLOW TO ROOSEVELT

'Al's' Willingness to Run Believed First Move to 'Stop' N. Y. Governor

across the country like a prairie fire largely because there has been nothing to stop it. Panicky state leaders, in the absence of any word from Smith, have been leaping aboard the Roosevelt band-wagon because, seemingly, there has been no other place for them to jump. The situation had reached a point where it seemed Gov. Roosevelt might get the nomination by default unless something was done to check the eagerness of state leaders to line up with Roosevelt.

It is the measured opinion of party leaders in Washington that the Smith statement has checked this tendency and made the race for the nomination a wide open affair.

Few believe that "Al" is a serious candidate for renomination. Should the nomination come to him without his seeking it, or without a serious fight in the convention, there is small doubt that he would welcome the opportunity to oppose the man who defeated him three years ago. But to fight for renomination, at the risk of splitting the party and reviving the bitterness of 1928 — Smith wants none of it, according to those in his confidence.

He has consented to the use of his name to provide a rallying post for those elements of the party—and they are not inconsiderable—that are opposed to seeing Franklin D. Roosevelt get the nomination by default.

DEADLOCK POSSIBLE

The immediate effect of the Smith statement is to encourage the candidacy of every other possibility for the nomination except Roosevelt.

This is particularly true of the candidacies of Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland.

Conceivably, the Democratic convention next June may come down to a deadlock, with Gov. Roosevelt having the bulk of the delegates but still unable to win because of the opposition of Smith and the favorite sons.

If and when this occurs, many shrewd politicians believe that the convention can turn only in the direction of Speaker Garner or Gov. Ritchie. Newton Baker, of Ohio, they say, has too many handicaps. He is one of the foremost advocates of American entry to the League of Nations; he has spoken publicly for the cancellation of war debts; he is on record in favor of the open shop—none of which is calculated to make him "available" for the nomination.

AID FOR GARNER

In any event, the Smith statement has given enormous impetus to the candidacy of both Garner and Ritchie.

Garner will go to the convention assured of the support of his own Texas delegation and probably of several other southwestern states. He is the Democratic "boss" of the House, withal a kindly "boss," and it is certain he will have the friendly regard of a large number of Democratic congressmen who will not be without influence in their own delegations.

Roosevelt Confident But Worried by Smith

By RAYMOND I. BROST
International News Service

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Former Gov. Al Smith's action in tossing his brown derby into the Democratic presidential ring has not scared Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, but it has him worried.

This was made clear today by close friends of Gov. Roosevelt in the absence of any official comment from Roosevelt on Smith's declaration that he would accept renomination.

Roosevelt, according to his advisers, is as confident as ever that he will emerge from the national convention at Chicago in June as his party's presidential candidate, but he realizes he is facing a harder fight with Smith as a rival for the nomination.

The New York governor is ready and eager for a showdown fight with former Gov. Smith in any presidential primary, even in Massachusetts and some other anti-dry eastern states where the Smith forces are the strongest, his friends said.

Gov. Roosevelt has no intention of commenting on Smith's statement. He made that very clear before he left last night for New York, where today he attended the funeral of John R. Voorhis, grand sachem of Tammany Hall.

'Hands Off' Policy Pledged by Smith

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Following is the text of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's statement announcing his willingness to accept the Democratic party nomination for President:

"So many inquiries have come to me from friends throughout the country who worked for and believe in me, as to my attitude in the present political situation, that I feel that I owe it to my friends and to the millions of men and women who supported me so loyally in 1928 to make my position clear.

"If the Democratic national convention, after careful consideration, should decide that it wants me to lead, I will make the fight; but I will not make a pre-convention campaign to secure the support of delegates.

"By action of the Democratic national convention of 1928, I am the leader of my party in the nation. With a full sense of the responsibility thereby imposed, I shall not in advance of the convention either support or oppose the candidacy of any aspirant for the nomination."

Child Hero Dies After Saving Baby in Fire

AKRON, O., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Robert Eros, 5, died after he fought a boy hero. He was fatally burned when his clothes caught fire while stamping out flames that threatened his 18 months-old sister, Ruth. The baby had pulled an oilcloth from a table, throwing an oil lamp to the floor where it burst into flames underneath her chair. Robert put out the blaze and the baby was not hurt.

Democrats May Beat Selves, Norris Says

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Senator George W. Norris, Republican Independent leader of Nebraska, predicted here today that the Democratic party will "make a damn fool of itself" and said Alfred E. Smith's statement regarding the presidential nomination was the beginning of what may be the party's defeat in an otherwise cinch election.

He said President Hoover would be the Republican nominee, but added it ought to be Hiram Johnson, Senator Borah or Gov. Pinchot, or somebody like that.

Roosevelt Speaker At Governors' Meet

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the chief speaker at the annual conference of governors at Richmond, Va., April 25 to 28, and he will be permitted to select the subject of his address.

This announcement was made today by former Gov. Carey A. Hardee, of Florida, permanent secretary of the conference.

FIGHT ON SMITH SEEN BY CANNON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Prohibition again will be an outstanding issue in the next campaign, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., declared following the announcement of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith. Cannon fought the New Yorker in the south, helping to lead the seaboard states away from the Democratic banner for the first time since the Civil War. Bishop Cannon said:

"Gov. Smith evidently believes that he can secure the support of all those who voted for him in 1928 and sufficient added support in the south and northeast to change the overwhelming defeat of 1928 to at least a small majority in 1932. He therefore greatly, most ardently desires the nomination, and has adopted the very best method to secure it under existing conditions.

"I believe he is utterly mistaken if he thinks that the six southern states which repudiated his wet Tammany leadership in 1928 will accept that leadership in 1932. If the issue becomes once more moral principles and leadership against party regularity—the maintenance or repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment—the same people will be found in 1932, as in 1928, battling for moral principles and the Eighteenth Amendment against wet Tammany partisan regularity."

Baker Keeps Silent On Smith's Entry

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Newton D. Baker, among those prominently mentioned for the Democratic presidential nomination, refused today to discuss former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's announcement of his candidacy.

SMITH'S NAME ON PA. BALLOT IN PRIMARY

Guffey's Pledge of 66 Votes For Roosevelt Seen as Drawing 'Al' Into Race

By MARK SHIELDS

The name of Alfred E. Smith will be on the Democratic primary ballot in Pennsylvania as a candidate for the presidential nomination in opposition to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, for whom petitions already have been filed at Harrisburg.

No Democratic leader today would admit sponsorship of any move to place Smith before the voters, but those not in sympathy with the Roosevelt movement said that the entry of Smith was inevitable.

One prominent Democrat declared his conviction that the Pennsylvania situation, while Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, has been endeavoring to line up a Roosevelt delegation pledging 66 delegates to the New York governor, was responsible for Smith's statement. Plans had been afoot to put up the name of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, as a Roosevelt opponent on the Pennsylvania ballot, but it was recognized he could not stop the New York executive.

CONTEST CERTAIN

To keep the delegates away from Roosevelt at this time Smith has made his statement. It is significant that under Pennsylvania law the written permission of a candidate is not necessary to place his name on the ballot, as it is in many states. Thus Smith can be a candidate at the Pennsylvania primary and still maintain the position in his statement where he said "I will not make a pre-convention campaign."

In a statement today Guffey indicated he considered Smith was leaving the field open, and was not acting against Roosevelt. He said:

"Gov. Smith has acted in his usual generous and gracious manner. He is leaving a free and open field to all the aspirants for the Democrat. nomination."

Under a resolution of the Pennsylvania Democratic committee delegates-at-large are pledged to vote for the party preference. This at the time of its adoption a few weeks ago was hailed as a victory for Roosevelt, as it appeared his name would be the only one on the ballot. Now, with the entry of Smith so soon after that development of Guffey strategy on behalf of Roosevelt, a contest is certain.

FOLLOW SMITH LEAD

State Chairman John Collins has declared for an uninstructed delegations, as has National Committeeman Sedgwick Kistler. Last week Attorney Alvin Jones, active Allegheny County Democrat, secured petitions for delegates from each of the county's five congressional districts, the intimation being they were for use by candidates who would be uninstructed. Maj. E. Lowrey Humes already has declared himself a candidate, uninstructed, from the Thirty-third District.

Few local Democrats believe that Smith will eventually be the party candidate for president. Many, however, are willing to follow his lead in the convention, throwing support to the man thought best available at that time. They are opposed to being bound to any candidate months in advance of the convention.

DOCTOR FINED AS TAX EVADER

Dr. Jacob A. Ruben, a physician with offices in the Jenkins Arcade, today pleaded guilty to evading income taxes amounting to $11,611.72 between 1925 and 1929. Federal Judge R. M. Gibson fined him $5,000 and costs.

Ruben's attorney told the court his client already had paid the back tax and its interest, amounting to $18,144.52.

The counsel asked the court permission for the defendant to have Ruben's wife present at the sentencing, but the motion was denied.

NO. 11.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works to lease to [illegible] a lease for the Diamond Market and providing the terms and conditions thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted, that the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works be and they are hereby authorized and directed to execute a lease for the Diamond Market and [illegible] for the term of five (5) years, commencing January 1, 1932, with an option to said lease of an additional term of five (5) years at [illegible] per annum. Said rents reserved shall be for the [illegible] of the five years payable in equal monthly installments of $833.33 on the first day of each month during the said term, and for the second period of five (5) years, or any part of such period as extended, payable in equal monthly installments at the rate of $1,000.00 per annum for the first day of each month during said extended term.

Said tenants shall give bond to be approved by the City Controller, in the sum of $10,000.00 for the payment of said rent and for the faithful performance of the terms of the lease.

Said tenants shall give bond to be approved, shall make such additions, alterations, improvements and repairs to the building and equipment as may be needed, and shall also install new refrigeration equipment at a cost of not less than $10,000.00, all of which repairs, additions, improvements and the installation of new equipment shall be approved by the Director of the Department of Public Works, and no repairs, installations or additions shall be made in any way until after the same have been approved in writing by the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh.

Said lessees shall have the right and privilege to operate exercise control and manage the said market house and personnel thereof.

Said tenants shall have the right among themselves to determine what [illegible] of portions of said market each [illegible] occupy, shall occupy, and in case of the failure or death of a tenant or his desire to discontinue business the remaining tenants acting by a majority vote of the same or through a committee appointed by them, shall have the right to substitute another tenant or tenants therefor which substituted tenant or tenants shall be subject to all the obligations of the original lessee.

Said tenants shall maintain as now provided a place for a farmers' market in said building.

Said lessees shall keep said building, fixtures and equipment in adequate repair and shall carry fire insurance upon the same in the amount of $100,000.00, in favor of the City of Pittsburgh and the lessees, individually or collectively, as their respective interests may appear.

If during the original term of said lease or as extended the said market shall be damaged by fire or other calamity so as to substantially interfere with its being operated as a public market, the lessees may surrender said lease or may repair the market. While it is being repaired the rental shall be abated proportionately as said market may be unable.

The entire cost of the operations of said market house, including the furnishing of water and the maintenance of said building and equipment in good repair, shall be paid by the lessees. Said lessees shall operate and maintain said market house in a clean and sanitary manner as a public market subject to the control of the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh, who shall have the right for cause stated, to determine whether said lessees are operating said market according to the terms of said lease and under the provisions of this ordinance, and his decision in settling thereon shall be final, conclusive and binding, unless an appeal from his decision shall be taken within five (5) days thereafter to the Mayor, whose decision thereon shall be final and conclusive and without appeal.

Upon the termination of said lease, the expiration of the term thereof or by action of the Director of the Department of Public Works, for cause shown, or for cause beyond the control of said lessees, except the voluntary surrender and cancellation of said lease by said lessees, the [illegible] pay to the lessees or to such persons as shall be designated by them the then depreciated value of the additions made by them to the market and its equipment, if the Director of the Department of Public Works and the lessees are unable to agree as to the value of said additions the dispute shall be submitted to a board of three arbitrators, one of whom shall be selected by the Director of the Department of Public Works, one by the lessees and the third by the two thus selected. The decision of said board or of a majority thereof shall be final and conclusive upon the City and the lessees without exception or appeal.

In case the lessees desire to exercise the option for an additional term of five (5) years, notice in writing shall be given to the Director of the Department of Public Works of said intention not later than the first day of July, 1936.

Other clauses as may be deemed by the Director of the Department of Public Works and the Solicitor necessary to protect the city and to carry out the intent [illegible] of the ordinance may be written into said lease.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Pattern 2272
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTION DIAGRAMS GIVEN WITH THIS PATTERN

By ANNE ADAMS

A very unusual dress that is remarkably easy to make, and one with seaming that is most flattering to every type of figure. The neckline is outstanding in smartness, and you will be surprised to know that the cowl collar is cut in one with the bodice and turned back very simply, yet how delightfully different the effect. The wide crushed girdle giving the higher waistline, is very new.

Pattern 2272 may be ordered only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE NEW SPRING FASHION CATALOG IS NOW READY. This beautiful, colorful book offers 32 pages of chic, authentic Anne Adams styles for adults and children. The newest frocks for afternoon lingerie, attractive house dresses and adorable kiddie models are featured—all personally chosen by Anne Adams and all fashionable, practical and easy and inexpensive to make. TROLLEY FUNDS DUE, CHARGE

The City of Pittsburgh should have collected approximately $100,000 from yearly surpluses of the Pittsburgh Railways Company accrued between 1925 and 1929, Attorney George N. Monro charged today in a letter sent to President of City Council John S. Herron.

Herron turned the letter over to Assistant City Solicitor Charles P. Lang for consideration.

The city and the railways company made an agreement in 1924, when thebcompany, in bankruptcy, was heavily indebted to the city for street repairs, taxes and bridge tolls.

Pittsburgh and other communities along the company's right-of-way were to receive the surplus earnings of the railways in return for these and similar debts.

Guilty Plea Made To Murder Charge

Fred Brudin, 25, of St. Joseph's way, South Side, today entered a plea of guilty to the murder of Sylvester Meder, 20, of 135 St. Joseph's way, in a fight which started when Brudin and others taunted Meder about a silk handkerchief he had been wearing.

The degree of murder was to be fixed this afternoon.

STATE CLOSES CHERO TRIAL

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The state was prepared today to close its case, with what Prosecutor Harry E. Clinton believes is conclusive evidence of the murder of State Trooper Serg. John E. Frey by Stanley Chero and William Schemnitzer, Broughton, (Pa.) youths.

The trial of Chero and Schemnitzer entered its third week today. Clinton's final witness will be William Jones, ballistic investigator, who it is understood, will testify that Frey died from a bullet fired from the pistol of Corp. E. C. Updike of the state troopers, Frey's companion.

Before Jones was called, two troopers, Serg. George Kerr and Lieut. John G. Morrissey were summoned as witnesses.

Chero and Schemnitzer, apprehended by Frey and Updike on a theft suspicion, are accused of having taken Updike's gun and killed Frey. They escaped and were arrested a month later at McAlester, Okla.

2 GUNMEN ROB JOBLESS WHEAT MAN NEAR BANK

Two highwaymen robbed Sam Weltman, 24, butcher for Mack's meat market, 2144 Wylie avenue, of $389 as he stopped to buy a paper at Fifth avenue and Stevenson street this morning, Weltman told police.

Weltman said he stopped his car near a bank and crossed the street for a paper, when two young men alighted from an automobile and poked revolvers into his ribs. One he said commanded:

"Keep quiet. Don't move. Everything will be all right."

The other robber reached into Weltman's overcoat pocket and took out a wallet containing the money, he said.

Weltman said one kept him covered while the other entered their car and started the motor. Then the car sped out Fifth avenue.

Weltman told police he pursued the car, lost it, and then went to Center Avenue Police Station and reported the robbery.

Weltman, who resides at 1304 Cark street, an employe of the market for eight years, was taking the place of George Hartzberger, 20, of 2128 Webster avenue, the regular messenger.

BILL OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A Senate bill to release government wheat for relief purposes was rejected today by the House Agriculture Committee.

The vote was 14 to 9, the ballot splitting party lines. Chairman Jones declined to make public the individual votes, but said he had supported the measure.

The bill before the committee was that of Senator Capper (Rep.), of Kansas, and was passed by the Senate January 4. It would release 40,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat for relief distribution by the Red Cross and other charitable organizations.

French Fliers Lost In Sahara Rescued

ALGIERS, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The French aviator, Reginensi, and two companions, who have been missing in the Sahara Desert for six days, were found yesterday by comrades in good health, but tired.

Their plane, which had been forced down, was intact. The fliers started early last week in an effort to make a record flight between France and Madagascar.

Ice Breaks, Boy Drowns, 3 Escape

SHARPSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 8.—James D. Fedelle, 10, was drowned and three companions, Paul Getway, John Page and Angelo Cataldi, saved themselves when they broke through ice while playing in a swamp near here yesterday. Getway failed in an attempt to rescue Fedelle.

Woman Hurt as Dog Picks Up Explosive

FORT WORTH, Tex., Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Mrs. F. L. Harris, 38, of Dayton, O., was recovering today from injuries she received yesterday when a can of nitroglycerine which had been picked up by her small dog exploded, killing the dog.

Laces —HOW THEY HAVE CHANGED!....

Instead of being filmy as in the past, they have decided to take on a weighty appearance. To look more as if carved out of some wondrous substance, rather than woven of delicate threads. To come out in stark white, eggshell, and pastel shades of blue, pink and green, instead of clinging to "staple" colors.

The Women's Evening Section is showing these new laces in dresses, and in ensembles consisting of formal frocks and brief or hip-length jackets with the new, short coolie or long sleeves . . . In the above listed shades and black—

Let Us Be Gay!...

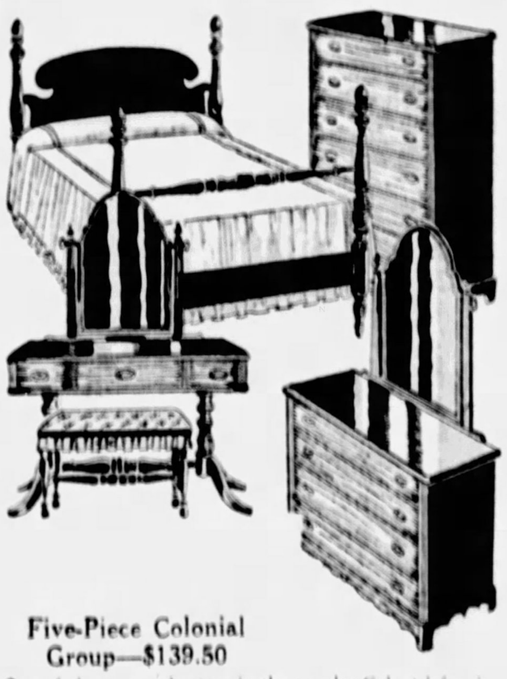
What better spring tonic could we suggest for a depressed and dejected world than some gay, new spring clothes? The Horne 83rd Anniversary Sale, which begins shortly, will offer Pittsburgh the opportunity to have new spring clothes—men's, women's, and children's—at special prices that would not be possible under any other circumstance.

Horne's February Furniture Sale Proposition

Is One That Everybody Can Understand:

15% Off Lowest Prices in a Generation, Applied to YOUR Own Selections From Our Entire Stock

This discount applies to our new spring goods, much of which was specially purchased; to all our regular stocks, inexpensive and fine; and to all furniture previously reduced, some of which is down as much as 50% to 60% from earlier prices.



Five-Piece Colonial Group—$139.50

Just as every Pittsburgher must concede the height of the Cathedral of Learning, so he will admit the undisputed position of Horne's in the field of better grade furniture.

With all furniture at the lowest price in a generation, and with quality furniture down to a figure which puts it well within the means of the modest small home budget, and with the ADDED SAVING of 15% to be made this month, through the February discount . . . the justification for action should be apparent.

Convenient Payments Arranged

With all these encouragements to have good furniture, under most favorable circumstances, there is the further inducement of our convenient monthly payment plan, by which the cost may be distributed over a period of months. Our terms, on this point, are comparable with those of any other store in Pittsburgh.

Question a Day:

I have read your column for years and it has puzzled me often what the "V." stands for in your middle name. I am sure other readers have raised this question. Will you not forget your modesty long enough some day to answer this for us?—Boots Boughman, Greentree.

Answer—Benny Rubin says "Vivamus." Jessica Dragonette is sure that it's "Vanity," once in a play, it fitted quite well for "Villain;" personally we imagine that it means "Versatile" or "Vivacious," but over at the courthouse it's peaceful "Vernon."

Studio Lights

Now, look at this! Walter Damrosch, the esteemed music director of NBC, has a complete file of Punch, beginning with the first issue in 1841.

Ms Old Kentucky Home and "Lead Kindly Light" are to be sung by Geraldine Farrar on WCAE Sun-Telegraph this Sunday at 5:30.

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd and "Sisters of the Skillet"—both working for the same sponsor—are engaged in a wit war.

Pete Zummo told Ted Kaye the other day: "I have lots of fun playing the saxophone for my own amazement."

Husk O'Hare's coming back to Pittsburgh and Earl Hines is due soon also. . . . they may broadcast.

Today's Tid Bit:

Three persons in the family living at 2824 California avenue, North Side, have names the first letters of which, together with the last, form the call letters of WJAS. They are Wilma, John, Anna and Sokol.

Auf Wiedersehen!

To my many radio friends and those of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, I extend my sincere appreciation for the kind co-operation they have given me while editor of the column, WE NOW PRESENT. In my new associations I hope to broaden this mutual friendship.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. Radio featuring the M. Vallee's orchestra improves in every detail save that of advertising. A tabloid vaudeville show, it has shared the quick-tongued Ray Perkins, as well as headliners from Broadway. There are pace and pep and precision to it. Yet its sponsors unwisely thread it with ballyhoo, and it is good enough to serve as its sponsor's best advertisement.

The programs to be given the extensive airing are those which convey most accurately the life and atmosphere of the region. First to be honored is a broadcast called "Grand Ol' Opry" originating in Nashville, in which various Southern characters, including an old-time fiddler, fruit jar drinkers (whatever that are) and a harmonica wizard play home-spun tunes . . . It is a good idea, if only because it will acquaint listeners with all types of American entertainment.

Spanish continues to be the most popular language taught by radio with Italian, German and French following in the order named. . . . The late Louis Wolheim has a brother, Dan, who is active in radio drama productions. . . . Sousa's Band is still subordinated to a male quartet.

A sign of the times is the placing of a commercial program on the N. B. C. networks as rival of Amos 'n' And. . . . Up today and down tomorrow is more true of radio than even of the stage or screen. The blackface comedians, however, managed to stay on top longer than any stars the microphone has yet produced. . . . A sharp dimming of their popularity set in after the recent fiasco of Amos' trial for murder. It's unoriginal dream climax proved a severe disappointment to listeners.

Secretary Falsely Accused by Employer's Jealous Wife

Is it okay for the boss to eat lunch with his secretary now 'n' then when they have business to talk over—?

Or to occasionally drive her and the other office gals to the station?

Or is Missus Tired Business Man right when she gets all steamed up about it, and insists the Big Boy fire said Secretary?

That's what Amy wants to know.

BOSS' WIFE JEALOUS

"Dear Sally:

"I read your column every night, and I'd like to hand a wallop to some of the whining, jealous wives of some of our businessmen—one in par'ic'lar.

"My story isn't a new one. The same one is repeated in dozens of offices, every day. I am secretary to the junior officer of a banking concern, and have been for the past two years. During this time my employer—Mr. Mann, for convenience—has escorted me to lunch, perhaps a dozen times, when we had some business to talk over. And occasionally he drives two or three of the girls in the office who commute, to the station in the evening.

"Now, I learn that his wife is furiously jealous of me, and has filed suit for 'separate maintenance' against him, claiming that he has been running around with me and neglecting her.

"And that isn't all. She phoned me, and made an appointment to 'talk it over,' but she failed to keep it. Then she phoned and warned me to 'keep away from her husband,' and sobbed out a personal-life story of how her life had been 'ruined' by him.

ACCUSED UNJUSTLY

"Next day her mother phoned my mother, to inform her of the 'trouble' I was 'making' for her daughter, and demanding that mother force me to resign from my position. Meanwhile, 'Mr. Mann' learned that I knew what was going on in his personal life, and asked me to have nothing to do with any of it, and to keep on working and minding my business as I had been. He won't listen to my resigning.

"This woman has no children. She is scarcely 30. Yet her entire Sob Story was self-pity . . . 'What will become of me?' . . . 'Look what he did to me,' and so forth.

"And I'm telling you, I wanted to sock her on the jaw, and tell her to straighten up and try to be someone. She has never had to do a thing for herself, or meet any hardships, and here she is, kicking up all this mess about nothing.

"I am 23, and for five years I have been the main support for a family of three, myself, Mother and an invalid sister. I need this job. I am not interested in her husband nor he in me. And now it looks as if I would have to take an unfair 'rap' because an incompetent, half-witted alimony hound thinks—or at least pretends to—that her husband is 'running around' with me.

"What shall I do? I hope some of the other girls who've had breaks like this can give me a few tips. I certainly need them. AMY S."

LET HER RAVE

What'll you do?

Well, my advice is to sit tight, kid. The fat's in the fire now . . . and so long as you're doing your work and minding your own business, let her rave. Chances are that if she didn't have you to throw a brainstorm over, she'd find something or someone else, since she's plainly looking for a chance to raise a row.

Or, she may be just another lazy, empty-head, who, having no real troubles to worry over, has to manufacture some. At any rate, there isn't any reason why you should starve, just because her imagination is working overtime.

But I'd cut out the lunches, my dear, and saw wood. There's no percentage in giving her the drop on you. And, after all . . . well, of course girls must eat. But not necessarily with their bosses.

Fay King Sees No Harm in Women Marrying Men Few Years Younger

TOO GREAT A DIFFERENCE IN YEARS ON EITHER SIDE NEVER LOOKS RIGHT
FAY KING
THE IDEAL HONEYMOONERS WILL ALWAYS BE YOUNG BUT HE A FEW YEARS OLDER!

By FAY KING

Fifteen years is a great difference in age between any couple, but seems even more so when it is the husband who is younger.

It may not be so noticeable at first, but it will be very much so when the wife is 55 and the husband only 40.

I have never been in love with any man younger than myself, but I have always considered it very foolish for a woman not to marry a man she loves and who loves her just because he is five or six years younger. Especially when they are both in their twenties or thirties.

Countless women are married to men slightly younger than themselves and are very happy, with no one aware of the difference.

Veritzen Disapproves of the Character, Vickers

To my intense annoyance, I found my hands shaking as I turned the manuscript pages of my third act back to the place Philip Veritzen had indicated, the entrance of the character, Vickers.

I could not tell from Mr. Veritzen's manner whether my delineation of the character had pleased or displeased him, but I was familiar enough with his methods to know that he had singled this character out for special attention, with its corollary, a special verdict of approval or disapproval.

Had Dicky been right in his prediction? When we both had realized that the character of Vickers was a caricature of Dicky's unpleasant qualities which I had sub-consciously drawn, he had said to me that Philip Veritzen "would probably toss Vickers into the incinerator."

I had been furious at myself, because mingled with relief at this prospect of getting rid of the character without having to make an issue of it, I found that I cherished a bit of wounded "temperamental author" vanity at the idea of Philip Veritzen being so displeased with the character I had drawn that he would delete it from the act.

There was distinct curiosity mingled with my other emotions. Did Philip Veritzen recognize, with Dicky, the fact that I had unconsciously based the unpleasant character of Vickers upon some of Dicky's foibles? I knew that if he had noticed the similarity it would make no difference in his appraisal of the character's value to the play. If he ordered the elision of Vickers from the play it would be because he considered him badly drawn, or that his conception was out of keeping with the other characters.

There would be no personal note in his decision. He was noted for that, this greatest dramatic producer of his time. I had heard it said of him that "he would not yield an iota of his critical opinion concerning a production if the wealth of the world or the love of some woman he idealized were at stake."

Philip Veritzen's voice brought me back with a jerk from speculation to reality.

"What's the matter?" he asked sharply, "did the reading exhaust you?"

I remembered something else I had heard of him. An exasperated actress had once said that "not being flesh and blood himself, he did not expect anybody else to be made of those elements," and I knew that nothing annoyed him so much as an exhibition of physical weakness upon the part of any one of his subordinates.

"No, indeed," I protested warmly, "I am perfectly all right. It's the entrance of Vickers you wish, isn't it?"

"Yes."

The monosyllable was curt and warned me not to delay longer in the reading. But I had hard work to keep my voice steady as I read over again the speeches of Vickers and the responses of the other characters, while Philip Veritzen with his head propped upon his right hand in a characteristic listening attitude scarcely moved an eyelash until I came to the line upon which Vickers made his exit.

"Stop right there," he commanded, and I obeyed him, but kept my eyes fixed on the manuscript. I felt a little as if I were a prisoner at the bar waiting to hear a verdict.

"I never knew it to fail," the great man began slowly and judiciously, "that the first play, no matter how brilliant or well-written, always contains what I call a 'black spot.' It may be a single speech, it may be the drawing of a character, it may be the action of one of the scenes, but somewhere, in every play, you will find it, or such has been my invariable experience."

He stopped, and I felt as if my breath were suspended also as I waited to hear the illustration of his remarks which I felt sure was coming.

"Now, take this play. I had my doubts about that character, Vickers, when you first brought him into the second act, but he had so little to do that I reserved judgment. He's your 'black spot,' however. Can't you see yourself that he is a perfectly impossible buffoon?"

There was such utter contempt in his voice, or so I imagined, that I had hard work to keep back a hopeless little gasp of disappointment. I remembered that he had praised the first two acts of my play highly, but he had said no word of commendation of this third act. I wondered if he disapproved of it as a whole, or if his evident dislike of the character Vickers had tinged his estimate of the whole act.

This, then was the result of the nerve racking night I had put in upon the third act, with Lillian and Katherine, in Lillian's own whimsical phraseology "going Aaron and the other fellow one better in the stunt of holding up the hands of Moses." I had been right instead of Lillian when I had insisted that no work done at such speed could be good. Yet I hugged the assurance to my heart dsperately—Lillian whose critical faculty I valued, had said that my third act was the best she had seen in many a day, and Dicky, whose opinion I prized even more, also had approved it, except for the characters of Vickers. Were they both entirely wrong? Would Philip Veritzen have no word of commendation whatever for the piece of work over which I had toiled so hard?

Household Hints

An electric iron by itself is harmless, but in connection with a woman, a doorbell and a forgotten switch, it is apt to be the torch that burns down one's home.

Do you picture your dinner as well as combine it satisfactorily as to taste? A combination of colors in vegetables makes the dinner more appetizing just because its pleases the eye.

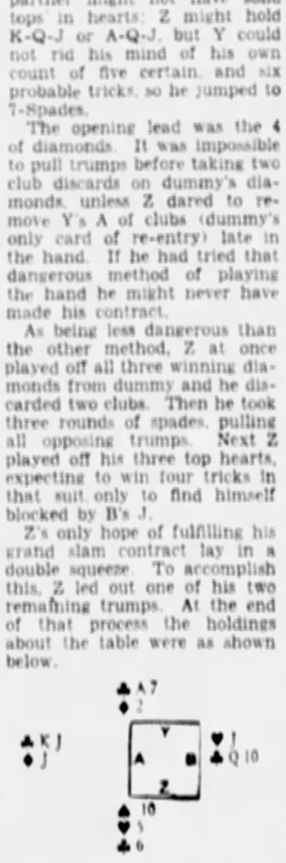
How often have you been visiting and found your hostess has neglected to switch on the light in the halls, thus causing you hopeless embarrassment by stumbling over side tables, etc. Let this serve as a warning to you to look out for the little things when you are entertaining.

Contract Bridge

By E. V. SHEPARD

Ambition Makes Play Difficult

It is fine to have an ambitious partner, even if he does carry bidding a bit high at times. The hand below afforded an excellent example of making hard work for the declarer by attempting a contract of one more trick than could be seen when play had developed.



Z's hand counted just seven probable tricks, so he used the "official" semi-forcing opening bid of 2-Spades. Y held five certain tricks, but he did not feel particularly pleased with his partner's choice of make. Two courses were open to Y: he could shift to his best suit, or he could utiline the less enlightening response of 2-No Trumps. Showing a suit is considered a stronger response than shifting to no trumps, because the latter better holds down bidding, as any bid of three can overcall 2-No Trumps, while it would require 4-Clubs to overcall 3-Diamonds, in case Z happened to wish to show a strong suit of Clubs. Y decided to show his great strength by bidding 3-Diamonds.

As his partner might be void of spades, Z showed his second suit with a bid of 3-Hearts, which Y took-out with a 4-No Trumps—thus showing slam expectations, and requesting Z to rebid the better of his two strong suits. Z bid only 5-Spades, to show lack of excess values. For all Y knew, his partner might not have solid tops in hearts; Z might hold K-Q-J or A-Q-J, but Y could not rid his mind of his own count of five certain, and six probable tricks, so he jumped to 7-Spades.

The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. It was impossible to pull trumps before taking two club discards on dummy's diamonds, unless Z dared to remove Y's A of clubs (dummy's only card of re-entry) late in the hand. If he had tried that dangerous method of playing the hand he might never have made his contract.

As being less dangerous than the other method, Z at once played off all three winning diamonds from dummy and he discarded two clubs. Then he took three rounds of spades, pulling all opposing trumps. Next Z played off his three top hearts, expecting to win four tricks in that suit only to find himself blocked by B's J.

Z's only hope of fulfilling his grand slam contract lay in a double squeeze. To accomplish this, Z led out one of his two remaining trumps. At the end of that process the holdings about the table were as shown below.

When Z led his last spade either A had to unguard his clubs or give up his winning diamond. He unguarded his clubs, so Y's diamond was discarded. B had to discard his winning heart or unguard his clubs. It made no difference which he did. B must lose the last two tricks, giving Z his grand slam. B decided to hold his good heart, so that both dummy's clubs became good.

Afflicted with an oil skin? Try the eau de cologne treatment. After the facial tubbing, dip a bit of gauze in eau de cologne; go over the skin surface lightly. Use creams sparingly. All right if they serve as cleansers, but don't leave them on over night. Cut down on fat foods, which excite the sebaceous ducts, make them gush forth their lubricating substances to film over the skin with a shine and shimmer.

Leading Man Brent Looms As Another Star of The Gable Type

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.

The word is out in Hollywood that Warners have a real find, perhaps another Gable—in George Brent, young Irish actor.

Evidently the studio thinks so, for he is to have his third role in quick succession in the Joan Blondell picture, "Miss Pinkerton." In the meanwhile he has to do final scenes opposite Ruth Chatterton. And Ruth is telling the world he is the best leading man she ever had.

Ruth Chatterton

Brent is 27 years old and was born in Dublin. As a youngster he was a juvenile player at the famous Abbey Theater there. Later he became mixed up in the revolution and had to leave Ireland.

In this country the young actor has operated several stock companies and has played minor roles on Broadway. He came to Hollywood on his own and managed to get Warners to test him.

He is a brunet and is six feet and one inch tall.

REMEMBER THIS ONE?

One of the big film thrills of all times was the opening of the Red Sea in "The Ten Commandments." Maybe Paramount is counting on this help interest the public in the projected talkie version. As Cecil B. De Mille is leaving for New York shortly with his Russian plays, it appears he will not be connected with the project. Lee Birensky, who had a hand in the writing of "Mata Hari," is working on an up-to-date treatment of the idea with Dudley Nichols scheduled to co-direct. So far, there isn't even a tentative cast.

"The Ten Commandments" originally was made in 1923 with Leatrice Joy, Theodore Kosloff, Theodore Roberts and many well-known players in the cast.

CINEMALAND

The baby daughter of Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon was christened yesterday by Dr. J. Hamilton Lash, the minister who married the popular film couple. . . . Wesley Ruggles goes into the hospital today to have his appendix removed. Further casting of "The Match of a Nation" will await his recovery. . . . Another appendix patient: Dorothy Lee will be home again next week. . . . Dorothy Mackaill is taking up golf under the tutelage of Hiss and Neil Miller. According to Dot, he shoots in the low seventies. . . . Eddie Robinson and his wife have returned from a three months trip to Europe. A script of his new picture, "Two Seconds," is awaiting him. . . . Danny Danker, well-known man-about-Hollywood, is down with pneumonia. Maybe this helps explain Frank Tuttle's beard. He used to be publicity man for the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. . . . As a special Olympic award Lee Marcus would give a cup to the man who saw Irving Thalberg three times in one day.

Plays, Players, By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Experience Unnecessary, comedy adapted from the German by Gladys Unger, will be seen in the Alvin tonight, beginning a week's engagement that includes Wed. and Sat. mats. 'Tis the fourth attraction of the Prof. Players and has Verree Teasdale and Walter Woolf topping the cast.

Next week the Alvin's bill will be Fred Stone and his daughter Paula in the new bit of Stone foolery, Smiling Faces. Seat shoppers may line up Thursday.

Small Timer says women who claim they "haven't a thing to wear" prove it even in a new dress.

* * *

The Nixon tonight will begin a season of merriment that will continue throughout the week with the usual midweek and week-end matinees. "The Band Wagon" will be the attraction, with Fred and Adele Astaire, Helen Broderick and Frank Morgan.

* * *

The next announced bill in the Nixon is the new Florenz Ziegfeld show that had been tentatively called Laid in Mexico and now bears the title "Hot-Cha." Its inhabitants will include Bert Lahr, Buddy Rogers, Lynn Overman, Marjorie White and others. Feb. two-two is the date.

* * *

* * *

The Carnegie Music Hall stage will be filled tonight by Phidelah Rice, who will be seen in all of the parts in "The Servant in the House," a fine play by Charles Rann Kennedy in which Walter Hampden starred a few years ago. It will be under the auspices of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church and it presents an artist who recently completed an engagement in the Belmont Theater, New York.

African Show In Garden

Blanketed from head to foot, including their huge lips that measure eight inches in diameter, the Royal Household of Ubangi savages arrived at the Motor Square Garden yesterday for their exhibitions here to begin Tuesday. Queen Kollo-Lo, ruler of 300,000 Ubangis, was rather glum for a Queen and blamed it entirely on the weather. Chief Guatibale, whose teeth are filed down to needle-point sharpness, clattered them together nevertheless, and continued to wonder about this strange country where rain comes down in big white flakes.

In Motor Square Garden they will live in a replica of a Congo village throughout their stay until February 20.

Their Pittsburgh engagement will give them the first opportunity they have had since their arrival in America to cook their own meals. This they will do in full view of the public as well as eating in public. Accompanying the troupe were four French explorers, Louis De Bourbon DuFour, M. Zonary, Georges Bardou and Jean Mathieu. The party will visit a theater tonight to see their first stage performance and immediately afterward will be interviewed over the radio at Station WJAS.

Their exhibition in the Motor Square Garden, opening tomorrow at noon, is described as a close-up view of life exactly as it is lived in the village of DeKaybe in French Equatorial Africa. The native women exhibit a physical phenomena in lip-extension. They will dance accompanying themselves on tom-toms and other instruments.

What a Pal!

Edward G. Robinson has the title role in "The Hatchet Man," opening Friday in the Stanley. And when he "buries the hatchet" it doesn't mean he's your pal again.

Durante Added to Cast Of 'Wet Parade'

Jimmy ("Schnozzle") Durante has been added to the cast of "The Wet Parade," now in production under direction of Victor Fleming. Others in the cast of the picturization of this Upton Sinclair novel include Walter Huston, Dorothy Jordan, Robert Young, Myrna Loy, Neil Hamilton, Wallace Ford, John Miljan, Lewis Stone and Virginia Bruce. Durante, who was a night-club and vaudeville entertainer before entering motion pictures, has appeared in "The New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," "The Cuban Love Song" and "The Passionate Plumber," Buster Keaton's new starring film.

Denny Forsakes Acting For Director's Job

Reginald Denny, who is forsaking acting to be a director, is one of a number at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios who have done this in the past. Former directors, now actors, at the studio include Wallace Beery, John Gilbert, Buster Keaton, Ramon Novarro, Lionel Barrymore and Jean Hersholt. And former actors, now famous directors, include Harry Beaumont, Charles Brabin, Tod Browning, Jack Conway, Edmund Goulding, Robert Z. Leonard, Harry Pollard, Charles Riesner, Edward Sedgwick, Edgar Selwyn and Sam Wood.

Studio Will Produce Broadhurst Play

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has acquired talking picture rights to "What Happened to Jones." This play, by George Broadhurst, was first produced in New York by William Brady, ran for almost two years, and has subsequently been an outstanding favorite with stock companies. No announcement has been made as to cast or director for the forthcoming picturization.

Alaskan Volcano Ashes Cover Town

SEWARD, Alaska, Feb. 8.—(INS)—Radio messages received here and at Anchorage, Alaska, from Squaw Harbor said Mount Shishaldin, a volcano on Unimak Island off the Alaskan Peninsula, was shooting flames 1,500 feet into the air. Hot ashes have covered Akutan Indian village, 118 miles south of Mount Shishaldin.

'The Big Parade' With Sound in Sheridan

"The Big Parade," co-featuring Jack Gilbert and Renee Adoree, is being shown in the Sheridan Square. This is the picture that made Hollywood war-minded. It was the first big production, involving the World War theme, to come out of Hollywood and it started a flood of like drama. Sound and musical score has been added to it for its present release. Vaudeville on the stage is headed by "Ebony Follies," heralded as a musical romance, hot from Alabama.

Dick Powell Returns To Enright Stage

Dick Powell is back in the Enright for another limited engagement as master of ceremonies. His show features Lee Morse, radio and stage entertainer; Mel Kee and three other acts also are on the bill. The film is "Good Sport," co-featuring John Boles and Linda Watkins.

Picture and Magician Harris Features

"Men of Chance," heralded as a romance of the race-track, is the current film in the Harris. Ricardo Cortez, Mary Astor and John Halliday have the prominent roles. Five acts of vaudeville on the stage are featured by Huber, magician. A highlight of his show is his trunk mystery.

Montgomery's Latest Is 'Truth Game'

Robert Montgomery has started work in his new starring film, "The Truth Game." Nora Gregor, who was a star with Max Reinhardt's Vienna company and was brought to this country to appear in German versions of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking pictures, has been given the principal feminine role in this film. This is Miss Gregor's first English-speaking part and her first role since she was recently signed to a long-term contract. Jack Conway will direct "The Truth Game," which is an adaptation of Ivor Novello's stage play of the same name. Other members of the cast include C. Aubrey Smith, Heather Thatcher and Edward Everett Horton.

WHEN YOUR CHILD COUGHS
DON'T USE DOPE

"There was Dorris at the front door—home from the party coughing and sneezing. Poor kid—believe me, I was irritated. I bundled her up nice and warm, and gave her Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. By seven o'clock she felt much better and ate her dinner. The cough cleared up, the cold heard away. In two days she was back in school again!" Mrs. P. F. Cane, Brooklyn, N.Y.
THESE are the facts and any chemist will confirm them: Many cough syrups actually contain DOPE . . . Dope—that means opium, morphine, ether, chloroform and similar drugs.
Mothers asked for a cough syrup without dope, or narcotics, or drugs . . . And, after many experiments Smith Brothers have developed a new SAFE syrup: Smith Brothers' Triple Action Cough Syrup. It contains no dope, no drugs, nothing that could upset or harm your child. Instead of dope, the far more efficient—but SAFE—principle of "Triple Action" stops the cough. So quickly does Triple Action work—and so surely—that even stubborn coughs simply melt away . . . Children like the taste. Only 35c.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Call your mother, . . . Your files have been bound . . . I laid out plenty today for you, please leave check . . Those pictures by J. are pediculous . . . You don't look that old . . . Why do they insist on taking photos when you're so tired? . . . And why do you do it? . . . So you gotta go again to the Grand Central Bldg and have some others . . . The ones by Hal are not adaptable for what they wanted . . . They're good, though . . . I sent Bill Corum the wire for you. Hope I got it right. Did you say: "Best piece of satire written in years?" . . . Well, that's what I sent . . . Cute wire from George Hale, dance director . . . Don't answer if so-and-so calls again . . . Oh, you forgive so easily, and you're the guy who once wrote: "It takes a fool to apologize and a bigger one to accept it." . . . Thomas Fortune Ryan II, who married the girl only last June, is here, and she is in Wyoming looking for a job.

That "consultant" representing the chap who is suing you for what you didn't do called to say that they want to drop the action and that they have a release all ready for you . . . So I told him that you wanted to know who was paying your lawyer's fees for that hooey . . . So he said: "Why, Mr. Winchell, of course!" . . . So I told him that if you were going to pay a lawyer a fee every time somebody decided to sue you, that you'd be living beyond your income—and to go and take the suit to court . . . So he said: "Here, here, now!" So I told him to go chase an ambulance—for there might be a case in it for him . . . What a gag that's getting to be, anyhow! . . . Huh! . . . You're absolutely right . . . Make them take you to court—and if you lose you pay . . . Since when do winners have to pay losers?

One of the hotte-t shows in town is staged on 6th between 48th and 49th with a beanery for a "blind" front . . . I don't blame you about that Hal LeRoy thing . . . How can anyone let a boy with pneumonia leave the hospital between shows to do his hoofing? . . . About two years ago a student dropped out of the University of Washington because of a slight ailment. The young man still is convalescing, but in the two years while recuperating he has become the brains and head man of the largest narcotic ring in the Northwest . . . In fewer words it proves again that the educated crook is more dangerous than the gangster . . . Remind me to tell you about the nicest speakeasy where they always give you your change in crisp, new dollar bills . . . And a $ buys you three "Winchells"—so named because they are not fit for decent people! Haw!

The Critics' Circle of London sent you its publication. Contains a piece by Sydney W. Carroll about the New York reviewers. He calls him Jean George Nathan . . . How've y' been? . . . And lists Heywood Broun as a dramatic critic . . . Burns Mantle, he says, is doing the most solid and useful work in all America—by publishing in book form this and that on the theater . . . He says of Hammond that he has a positive genius for being generally unfair, and that Percy will describe a thoroughly competent (even clever) artiste as "the worst in America" . . . Of Gabriel he says: "He reverses his judgments on people quite frequently" and that "no mercy" is his motto . . . He says that Atkinson is nearly always devastatingly right and that Arthur Ruhl is good, too . . . Of the others he had no more space to devote . . . He says of Allen that he never thinks of nasty things to say about a play "and Allen is one of the theater's friends. I wish there were more like him . . . Poor Kelcey Allen . . . Oh, yes, the writer was sorry the local critics didn't like his play, but he felt that they were honest, etc. . . . The old malarky . . . Trying to show that he Can Take It . . . As if anybody can.

I overheard the reviewer for the Evetelly blurt that he had rec'd a line from a Newark reader about you and that the reason he didn't print it is that you are sentitive, etc. . . The old legend . . The line being: That you gave a better performance on your aisle seat witnessing the first performance of "Blessed Event" than anyone in the cast . . . That's your own crack! . . . You ran it on Ethel Barrymore when she saw the premiere of "Holiday" at the Plymouth ever so many hundreds of opening nights ago . . The Cocoanut Grove, Boston, wants you to come up for the week-end. Told them no could do . . And that you no like planes, too . . Saw part of the new Ziegfeld show rehearsal . . Lahr handed me 7 stitches in the side in the one scene I saw . . The two songs I heard and kept whistling were called "There I Go Dreaming Again" (June Knight sings it) and June MacCloy's "Little Old New York" . . Lew Brown and Ray Henderson stuff, you know.

Find out if Harriet Fink, of the "Follies" and now rehearsing with Flo's new show that Mark Hellinger is writing with the boys is secretly married and living at your old hotel near the Park . . . Vilma Ebsen gets prettier as the matinees go by . . . Speaking of pretty persons, I dropped in to see White's "Scandals" for a few moments last night . . . The girls are getting plumper—which shows what satisfaction, contentment, a job in a hit will do . . . Romney Powell, of Fox, did a swelegant job with his Manhattan scenes, be sure and see them . . . The Silver Slipper opened big, nice show by Milam . . . They wonder why you haven't been around to the Silver Ball . . . Those two places by Gene Bell were blue-coated and poor Bell was told that you had written about the joints by name . . . I told the caller you never mentioned them and that the files were always open for inspection . . . You can be blamed for more things . . . How does it feel to be such a villiain? . . . Ben Bernie, The Old Microbe, used to hold the lantern while his ma sawed wood.

Walda wants you to send a check for a penny and a gypsy costume. I'll get the latter during lunch time tomorrow . . . The Associated Press man on Staten Island says you must be wrong about the 280 speaks there being operated by two politicians as he "doesn't know anything about it!" . . . Of course! . . . Your Girl Friday.

Accuses Capitalist In Divorce Suit

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A suit for divorce in which she charged her husband with wrongfully accusing her of stealing bonds from him and converting them to her own use has been filed in Superior Court by Mrs. Nona V. Pearson, 64, against George Pearson, retired Indianapolis capitalist.

She also asked that she be awarded a share of community property valued at $1,000,000 and $2,200 monthly for her support pending trial of the case. The couple married 10 years ago.

Abolish University, Phoenix Body Urges

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The boards of control of the University of Arizona and the two state teachers' colleges have under consideration a proposal for abolition of the university until economic conditions improve.

The proposal was submitted by a representative of one of the teachers' training institutions at a conference of educators connected with the three schools. The purpose of the conference was to work out plans for reducing the cost of higher education in Arizona.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Dangerous to Neglect Chronic Nose Bleeding

Nose bleed is a daily occurrence in the lives of many children. Its importance and meaning are often overlooked. If it persists it may be a stumbling block to good health and normal development.

Dr. Copeland

If a nose bleed occurs while the child is asleep the mother becomes alarmed. When she enters the child's room and notices the pillow stained, her first impulse is to awaken the child. The child becomes unduly frightened.

A common cause of nose bleed in children is a localized inflammation of the nose. The child frequently touches this inflammation and this results in a chronic sore. The spot may become inflamed and infected.

Nasal polypi are often associated with nose bleeds. Nasal polypi are small growths in the nose. They should be removed, because, in addition to causing bleeding, their presence interferes with normal breathing.

Any deformity in the nose, particularly a deviated nasal septum, may have nose bleed as a frequent symptom.

There are certain blood conditions which may be the cause of nose bleeds. A blood test is the only accurate method of determining these conditions.

Although nose bleeds are most common in childhood, adults frequently suffer from them. The causes may be the same as in children. High blood pressure is one cause of nose bleed found only in adults.

Contrary to the common belief, nose bleed in an individual with high blood pressure is really a fortunate occurrence. It is a safety measure provided by Nature. Many individuals suffer from high blood pressure. They do not realize they have this condition and neglect it. When they have a nose bleed it means that as a result of excessive pressure on the arteries bleeding occurs at the weakest point in the body. It is fortunate that this is in the nose where the bleeding is not serious. If it happened anywhere else in the body, particularly in the brain, it would indeed be serious. When it occurs in the brain we have a condition known as "cerebral hemorrhage," or "stroke."

The chronic sufferer from nose bleeds should have a thorough physical examination. The nose and throat should be carefully examined. The blood pressure should be taken and an urinalysis should be included.

When a nose bleed occurs keep cool. Excitement and unnecessary activity serve to stimulate the bleeding rather than to stop it.

It is best that the patient be placed in a reclining position with the head at a lower level than the body to keep the blood from running into the lungs. Often the bleeding may be successfully controlled by applying ice to the nose. It may be necessary to place cotton packings in the nose. If the bleeding does not stop, call a physician.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

On Moving Into a New Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently moved to a new apartment. What is now the proper procedure? Are my friends now supposed to call me up to wish me luck in my new apartment, or am I to send them announcements first?

H.

Undoubtedly your close friends will call you up or call on you to wish you every joy and happiness in your new home, and if you wish, you might send cards with your new address to those whom you do not know so well.

Or, if you wish, there is the charming way of making the announcement by giving a tea or supper which will be in the nature of a housewarming.

An excellent way of making this announcement is to get some of the new "informals," which are double visiting-cards, of a size larger than the usual visiting-card. On the lower half of the front of this card is the engraved name, and in the lower right corner of this half is the address, engraved in the same type of letter used in the name, but in smaller size.

On the space inside you may write a message. Something like this is appropriate:

Dear Mary:

On the front of this card is our new address, and our new telephone number is: Cosmos 4-4556. We hope that you will use both soon, for we are eager to show you our new home,

Cordially,

ROSANNA.

Acknowledging Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My parents have received a formal announcement of their niece's wedding. Enclosed with the announcement was a card on which was written: "Reception for the guests after the ceremony will be held at Hotel Blank, 10 Home street. Please let us know whether or not you will attend."

My mother and father do not like the wording of the invitation. They think it is too "stiff" and refuse to acknowledge even the receipt of the announcement.

The wedding is very formal and will take place in the evening. Naturally also the announcements would be formal. I have tried to convince them of this, but they won't believe me.

Won't you please tell me who is right?

I

Although this invitation to the reception is not worded in the customary form, it does, as you say, indicate a certain formality, as it should to be consistent with the formal invitation of the wedding.

Your mother and father should acknowledge this invitation in the spirit in which it was sent . . . it really is not gracious of them, or friendly, to suggest how it should have been sent. The invitation should be acknowledged . . . accepted or "regretted" . . . as it was sent.

Grainger to Lead N. Y. U. Music Unit

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Percy Grainger, internationally known pianist and composer, has been appointed head of the music department of the New York University College of Fine Arts. He will succeed Albert Stoessel, who has become head of the opera department of the Juilliard graduate school.

Mr. Grainger will begin active duty next September. In addition to supervising the department, he will teach classes in musical appreciation and in composition.

American Palestine Drive Head Named

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The election of Louis Lipsky, former president of the Zionist Organization of America, as chairman of the administrative committee of the American Palestine campaign was announced yesterday.

Among his five associates will be Judge William M. Lewis of Philadelphia. The campaign is being conducted by the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Stars Bore Baby Lyon At Her Christening

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Five-months-old Barbara Bebe Lyon, daughter of Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, was christened Saturday in Hollywood Congregational Church amid a glittering galaxy of motion picture stars. She yawned at the circle of famous faces about her, but evinced a wide-eyed interest when motion picture cameras began to click. The christening was held on the birthday of her father.

Miss Marie Wald Is Married to Dr. Loikrec

In Bridal Party

Yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock, in the Beth Shalom Synagogue, Miss Marie Wald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Wald, of Darlington road, became the bride of Dr. Harry Loikrec, of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Loikrec, of Sandwich, Ontario. There was a reception later in the synagogue ballroom.

The bride wore a sleeveless gown of white angelskin lace, with a long veil of tulle finished with a cap of tulle and lace. She carried white roses showered with lilies of the valley. Her aunt, Mrs. Pearl Blumenfeld, as matron of honor, wore canary yellow chiffon and a corsage of spring flowers. Miss Marie Beck, of New Haven, Conn., cousin of the bride, as maid of honor, wore a gown of peach taffeta and carried Talisman roses.

The bridesmaids, all cousins of the bride, were Miss Sarah Wald, in peach chiffon; Miss Jean and Miss Miriam Wald, in aquamarine blue chiffon, and they carried tea roses. The bride's sister, Miss Jean Wald, was junior bridesmaid, wearing flowered pastel taffeta and carrying a Colonial bouquet. Bernice Lutz, small cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a frock of pink chiffon and carried a basket of rose petals.

Serving as best man was Harry Sherman, and ushers included Herman Loikrec, brother of the bridegroom; Harry and Leon Wald, brothers of the bride, and Herman Solow. Irving Loikrec, small brother of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Mrs. Wald wore beige lace and the bridegroom's mother wore black satin.

After an eastern honeymoon, Dr. and Mrs. Loikrec will be at home in Pittsburgh.

6 FROM DOOMED SHIP LANDED

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Six survivors of the fishing schooner Eleanor Nickerson, which the Belgian liner Jean Jadot sliced in two off Halifax Friday, arrived in New York yesterday when the Jadot docked.

Tears streamed down the youthful face of Capt. Jean Marie Lavigne, of the Jadot, as he told of the tragedy in which 21 of the Nickerson's crew lost their lives. As he talked, his wife stood at his side, crying.

The six survivors, who were all on the schooner's deck when she was rammed in half by the Jadot, had little to say, beyond praising Capt. Lavigne for his seamanship and his treatment of them, after they were rescued from a tossing dory.

Tech Coach Made Insurance Executive

Robert N. Waddell's appointment as its general agent in Pittsburgh was announced today by the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia. Waddell, who resigned his position of production manager with the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company to accept the new office, has been in the insurance business 10 years. Thomas J. Danner remains with the Fidelity as associate general agent. Waddell is president of the Pittsburgh Life Underwriters' Association and coach of the Carnegie Tech football team.

Honor Guest Draws Perfect Bridge Hand

A perfect bridge hand—all the diamonds in the deck—was passed out to Max J. Winkler, of the Schenley Apartments, last night in a game in the Schenley Hotel which followed a dinner in celebration of his fifty-second birthday. His seven diamond bid, doubled, was promptly redoubled. He laid down his hand and law Mrs. Cassie Winkler; Mrs. chalked up 1,810 points. Sidney A. Blackmer and Max L. Blum.

SMART WOMEN DEMAND SIMPLE AFTERNOON FROCKS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—It is no wonder that the little afternoon frock is going over so big. There is a strong demand for simple little dresses that have their own cachet of smart individuality and yet veer entirely away from any form of ostentation in design, cut or trimming. We are going to bank heavily on this sort of frock to see us through a season that will be marked by an absence of unnecessary expenditure. So we will look for frocks that can be worn throughout the day and look well wherever they may find themselves. And this can only be achieved by the very simple frock that is quite definitely not of the sports category, nor yet of the orthodox afternoon mode. Between these two extremes we come to the "little" frock, the frock whose charms and virtues we have been extolling and of which you are to see so much this year. Buyers are selecting several such models for copying and exploitation and so one will see them worn by smart women everywhere.

* * *

THE COMPOSITE SKETCH shows successfully two typical little afternoon frocks. First is a Maggy Rouff model in tailored design, cleverly tempered and softened. It is of banana-colored wool-romain with a collar and vest of white pique cut on one piece. The collar is a shallow turn-over affair with knotted ends which top the buttoned closing of the vest. A wide band of pique edges the flaring, slashed sleeve. The top of the skirt is cut in odd piecings which blend into two deep pleats at the front and back.

* * *

The girl they talked about was charming, but—

"Weren't you shocked at Dorothy?" they whispered . . . "Why does she wear her underthings a second day? Everybody perspires a little and it's so easy to offend."

HOW can she take such chances with personal daintiness? Underthings constantly absorb perspiration acids and odors. These become noticeable so soon. Fresh lingerie each day is actually more important than the daily bath.

It is so easy to wear fresh things every day! For Lux is made to remove perspiration acids and odors completely, yet saves colors and fabrics, keeps them like new. And it takes only four minutes or less.

Follow this dainty habit—Lux your underthings and stockings after every wearing. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Underthings absorb perspiration. Avoid offending . . . Protect daintiness this way:

Wash this 4-minute way: 1 tablespoon of Lux does 1 day's undies—stockings, too! Squeeze suds through fabric, rinse twice, shake.

JOBLESS PLEAS URGED BY POPE

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 8. (AP.) — The economic distress, the world unemployment problem and other issues common to all countries were suggested today by Pope Pius as subjects for Lenten preachers in the Catholic Churches.

The divine word that "man shall be punished in those same things by which he sinned" has come true, said the Pontiff, events have shown the "impotence of man" and revealed that "help from the hand of God is indispensable." The Pope said:

"There is a new paganism, a materialization in all walks of life. Men still think that money is everything. They seek it as a means to enjoyment, to power and to domination. Thus, as St. Gregory the Great said, man's riches are becoming his thorns."

The world's hopes of conferences on disarmament and reparations are "oppressed by afflictions, and there is always greater pessimism," said the Pontiff, urging therefore that the preachers spread "not pessimism, but optimism" and seek to "fortify souls." He said:

Film Beauty Quits Deportation Battle

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8. — (INS.) — Leaving behind a marital and immigration law tangle that puzzled the best lawyers, Janina Smolinska, the "Miss Poland" of international beauty contest fame, today was en route to New York on her way home to her native land.

Behind her the beautiful dancer left her contested and unsettled suit for divorce from Walter Grabowski, whom she married several months ago in an effort to avoid deportation. Authorities revealed her status in this country was doubtful, so Janina decided to deport herself.

SCOUTS TO JOIN IN CELEBRATION

Allegheny County Boy Scouts will join with other councils of the United States in celebration of the thirty-second anniversary of scouting in America this week. Each district of the county will participate in a list of events.

Andy T. Benson, county scout executive, has announced that district commissioners will be in charge of the numerous activities that will mark the week.

The Boy Scouts of America was organized by the late William D. Boyce, Chicago publisher, upon his return to the United States after he had been a benefactor of a British Boy Scout's "good turn" during a London fog.

Then he remembered—Lincoln's Birthday was his mother's birthday, too. Back home it would be a family event. He mused. Business cares and the office noises faded. He seemed to hear familiar voices prompting "Home—come home!"

Suddenly his secretary spoke. The day-dream shattered. "Will you call Mr. Foster about the week-end conference?" Mr. Steele came back to earth abruptly.

"Call? Week-end?" he queried. "That's just the idea!" He reached for his telephone. "Give me Buffalo—Cleveland 9801—Hello, Mother, I'm coming home for your birthday . . . Yes, I'm busy, but business can wait!"

Transit Board Warns of Five-Year Subway Delay

CARRICK, SEWICKLEY HOLDING RATE WAR RALLIES

TRAFFIC PLANS HELD UP BY FUND LACK

Commission Says Project Will Fail Unless Council Reconsiders Budget Cut

Plans for the construction of Pittsburgh's $6,000,000 subway will be delayed at least five years unless City Council reconsiders its action and appropriates $12,000 for the continuance of the City Transit Commission, Council was advised today.

The use of this money now in the City Treasury would cost the City of Pittsburgh only $310.75, the interest on the unexpended balances from the subway bond issues.

Council's action, held tantamount to scrapping the whole plan, also jeopardizes an expenditure of more than $300,000 in preliminary work, members of the commission wrote in a letter to Council asking that body to reconsider its earlier action cutting the transit commissioners' appropriation from $30,000 to $1,800.

STILL CO-OPERATING

Asserting that members of the commission are still maintaining a thoroughly co-operative attitude, but disclaiming any responsibility for a "serious and costly mistake" the letter continued:

"We firmly reassert our contention that if the work on our legislative program is stopped now, the subway proposition will be back where it was many years ago. There are two parts to this legislative program, both of which must be carried on this year. A constitutional amendment for the assessment plan has ben approved at one session of the Legislature and must be reintroduced again in the session of 1933 in order to come before the voters in the fall of that year. If it fails in the Legislature of 1933, it would be necessary to start all over again and a similar amendment could not be submitted to the voters before the fall of 1938."

SCRAPPING FEARED

The members reasserted their contention that if the work is delayed any further it means the scrapping of the whole subway program with a loss of more than $300,000 Council has already invested in the project.

"It is only necessary for Council to permit this commission to spend a small portion of the money already appropriated for this purpose and now lying in the city treasury. The present budget and taxation difficulties have nothing to do with the case and to inject them into the matter is only misleading. We have pointed out that we can carry on the essential part of the commission's program with the expenditure of a small sum of money. To meet our maximum request would require only $310.75 from current taxes."

The commission asked a hearing on Wednesday.

Fear Felt for Ex-Braddock Priest in China

DR. CARL P. HENSLER

Letter in December Told of Student Disorders

Friends of the Rev. Dr. Carl P. Hensler, formerly of St. Brendan's Catholic Church, Braddock, but now a professor in the Catholic University at Peiping, China, are concerned over his welfare. They have received no letters from him for some time.

The last letter from the priest was received here by Frank X. Spitzer, a deputy coroner. In it conditions during the civil disturbances were recited in a very human vein. A portion of the letter written December 14, said:

"We are enjoying a temporary vacation, because all the students are taking free rides to Nanking to harry the government. Your American University student is tame alongside these lads. Our boys think nothing of informing the university heads that they will take a week off to go to Nanking and there give the officials a few pointers on how to conduct the ship of state in the present trying circumstances.

"Our boys were part of a contingent numbering over 1,000,000 and at first the railway administration refused to give a train. They camped in the station, took over all the rolling stock and for three days not a train puffed out of Peiping. Finally the young marshal decided that it was Nanking's turn to handle the boys and ordered a train for them.

"Soldiers with drawn bayonets and policemen with clubs do not fraze our boys. They know what they want, when they want it, and usually get it. We know that they will come trooping back within a week, get out their books and go to class as if nothing had happened."

Three Women Saved At North Side Fire

Three women were led to the street by Wagonman John Macher, of the North Side Police Station, when fire, caused by an overheated flue in Harvey's restaurant, 121 West Ohio stret, filled the upper floors of the building with smoke. The flames were confined to the kitchen. The rescued women are Mrs. Pearl Danforth, 30; Mrs. Helen Seighman, 28, and Mrs. Frances Meyers, 40.

TEACHERS' PAY CUTS OPPOSED BY LEADERS

Homestead and Versailles 'Voluntary Rebate' Move Held Unwise Economy

Wage cutting in two Allegheny County school districts during the past week and rumors of the spread of reductions in teachers' salaries in other districts will be considered at meetings of the county's two associations of school principals this week.

This move follows the criticism voiced by Dr. James N. Rule, state Superintendent of Public Instruction, of the action of teachers in Homestead and Versailles Township in "voluntarily" voting a rebate of part of their salaries to the school boards.

MEETING CALLED

John S. Hart, of Glassport, president of the Principals' Round Table in the school districts under the jurisdiction of C. E. Dickey, County Superintendent of Schools, has called a meeting of his group for Saturday afternoon in the City-County Building.

C. C. Kelso, of Swissvale, president of the Independent District Superintendents' Association, said his group probably would meet Thursday.

Both Hart and Kelso agreed with the stand taken by Dr. Rule.

"To cut teachers' salaries unless and until every other measure of necessary economy has been taken is unsound and unsafe."

DOUBT EXPRESSED

Mr. Hart said:

"There is a doubt, as expressed by Dr. Rule, whether the teachers have a right to reduce their salaries."

Mr. Kelso said:

"Dr. Rule is right in theory, at least. It has taken the teachers a long time to get their salaries where they are, and I fear any move that will reduce them."

Asked if Thursday's meeting would be devoted to a discussion of the salary question, Kelso said:

Chandelier Reminder Of Migration After Split

An old-fashioned chandelier, which lighted the meeting house of a colony of German Lutherans who migrated to the hills of East Tennessee after a disagreement in the parent church in New York nearly 90 years ago, now hangs in the office of Edward B. Lee, Pittsburgh architect in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

It was made by hand out of sheet-metal by Emil Shimmell, tinsmith of the Wartburgh colony, named after the castle in which Martin Luther is said to have translated the Bible.

The chandelier, which holds a number of candles corresponding to the age of confirmation in the Lutheran Church, hung there until the younger generation remodeled the church.

Twenty years ago Charles Gerding, of 303 Washington street, Oakmont, whose great-uncle, George F. Gerding, founded the colony, visited the settlement on business. He attended services in the little church, discovered the chandelier and received permission to take it.

Three of the original colonists still live in the little settlement, four miles from the nearest railroad, he said. The late Edward T. Sanford, former Supreme Court Judge, and Knaffle, the Knoxville photographher whose "Modern Madonna" is well known in Pittsburgh, are descendants of the Lutheran colonists, Charles Gerding said.

New Chief in First Raid in Sharpsburg

Sam Fair, the newly appointed Sharpsburg police chief, and Lieut. Armel Lavia made their first raid early today when they seized a quantity of intoxicants, they reported, in an alleged drinking place at 1205 Main street. They said they arrested John Udanis, 40, of 2204 Middle street, Sharpsburg.

FIREMAN LOSES MOTHER'S GIFT IN HOLDUP

Offers Reward for Keepsake; Bandits, Burglars Busy In Week-end of Crime

A $100 reward has been offered by Stanley Puszakowski, a city fireman, of 3117 Dobson street, for the return of a ruby ring stolen from him when two bandits held him up early today on the Twenty-eighth Street Bridge.

Besides the ring, the thieves took $19 cash and a wrist watch. The ring, Puszakowski said, was a gift from his mother, and the watch bears the inscription, "From Josephine to Stanley." The holdup occurred while Puszakowski was en route to his post at No. 25 Engine Company.

BLAWNOX MAN ROBBED

Joseph Siwek, of Blawnox, was held up and robbed of $25 and his watch at Twenty-eighth street and Mulberry way by two bandits, he reported to police early today.

Thieves entered the apartment of R. Hevessey, 5712 Northumberland avenue, after forcing a rear door, and stole jewelry valued at $150, police reported early today.

Two men who held up H. Horowitz in his store, 522 North St. Clair street, were being sought by East End police today. The men escaped with $10 from the cash register, police said.

Edward Woods, of 2835 Penn avenue, complained to detectives that he was held up and robbed of $40 in Twenty-first street near Liberty avenue.

POCKET PICKED

Anthony Grecco, of 3108 Ellers street, said his pocket was picked of $15 while he was riding in a Hamilton street car at Fifth avenue and Jumonville street.

Ralph Cook, of 400 East Ohio street, said that three men who held him up in East Lacock street, fled after searching him. Nothing was taken, Cook said.

William Halligan, 18, of West View, arrested in St. Louis, will be brought here for questioning in connection with the robbery of the home of Martin Schmidt, Bellevue Heights, detectives said. Five guns were found in Halligans possession when he was arrested, detectives said.

QUIZ VOTE AIDES ON POLITICS

Employes of the County Elections Bureau, supposed under the new County Commissioners' setup to be entirely non-political, have been given questionnaires, it was learned today, which contained the following questions:

"Who is your political sponsor?"

"To what organization do you belong?"

The questionnaire, sent to all of the bureau employes by their director, John W. Vickerman, also asks their age, their ward and voting district, former employers' names, business experience and if they can operate a typewriter, keep books or do mechanical work.

County officials denied that similar questions had been asked of other employes.

County Commissioner C. M. Barr said the elections bureau questionnaire was given employes without the Commissioners' knowledge.

WUERTHELE OUT FOR COYNE SEAT

E. J. Wuerthele, of the Fifteenth Ward, has announced his candacy as one of the numerous aspirants seeking the Republican nomination for State Senator in the Forty-third District in opposition to James J. Coyne, incumbent.

Mr. Wuerthele

Wuerthele stated he has always been an independent Republican, having supported Gifford Pinchot, C. C. McGovern, C. M. Barr, the late Richard W. Martin, P. J. McArdle and Robert Garland. Wuerthele is a manufacturer of bowling alleys and billiard tables and claims to have won national distinction as the "inventor of the rubber band duckpin game."

McKeesport Liberals Ask Meeting Place

The Pittsburgh branch of the American Civil Liberties Union today suggested by letter to Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport, that he set aside a designated spot in his city for public meetings to prevent such violence as attended the Communist meeting last week. Mayor Lysle said he would refer the suggestion to Council.

Leetsdale Bandits Slug Man, Escape

As he opened the safe this morning, Douglass Thompson, 23, of Rochester, attendant at the Standard Gas Station, Main street and Beaver road, Leetsdale, was confronted by two armed, masked Negroes, ordered to the backroom and knocked unconscious. Thompson told Leetsdale police that more than $100 was taken from the safe.

Policeman Battles Pair, Injures One

John French, 47, Negro, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today, and Harry Collins, 29, of Finance street, was in jail because, Patrolman Edward Moran testified in East End Police Court, they tried to attack him at Homewood and Hamilton avenues. Moran said he approached them when he was told they carried guns.

FIGHT AGAINST HIGH PRICES OF UTILITIES

Consumers Organizing to Attack Legislators Who Oppose Reform Demands

With resentment aroused throughout the state against excessive public utility rates, leaders are carrying the fight to the consumers at public mass meetings tonight in Carrick and Sewickley.

A series of organization meetings by the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Associatio will be opened Friday night in Johnstown under leadership of Mayor Eddie McCloskey with officers of the state group. Invitations have been sent 950 municipalities to join the association in a concerted drive to attack legislators opposed to rate reforms through action at the polls, A. B. Davidson, president of the association, announced today.

Every consumer of public utility services has been invited to attend the demonstration in Carrick High School at 8 o'clock tonight. The Forty-fifth Senatorial Committee of the state organization will direct the meeting. Appointment of sub-committee chairmen and members to direct the fight in the district will be named. O. W. Heselbarth, chairman, will preside. The committee members include State Representative Joseph G. Steedle, Harry Wohlwend, Greentree Borough engineer, and William H. Meyers, Steedle and Wohlwend will be among the speakers.

Edgeworth, Glen Osborne, Haysville and Sewickley will join in the mass meeting tonight in the Sewickley Borough Building also at 8 o'clock under auspices of the Sewickley Valley Board of Trade. The purpose and plans of the state-wide campaign will be explained by Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, and C. V. Shoop, secretary. Harry K. Campney, of Sewickley, vice president of the trade board, will preside. The board is considering plans to join the state association.

Ellwood City Joins Utility Rate Fight

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 8.—This city has decided to join with other nearby municipalities in the fight on high gas and water rates. The city owns its own light plant.

2 Held After Row With Patrolman

Alleged to have resisted arrest when Patrolman Edward Moran attempted to question them at Homewood and Hamilton avenues, John French, 47, and J. Collins, 29, of 7241 Finance street, were to be arraigned in East End Police Court, where they were taken after being treated for bruises at the Pittsburgh Hospital. Moran said the men attacked him and he had to use his night stick in self defense.

Political Pledges Are Bonds and Market Is Dull

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

How about those presidential candidates and their ante-election views on prohibition and its by-products.

Congressman Dibbdabbs comes out on the straight rye ticket before election. But afterward he is as dry as a water bug in a dust pan.

Senator Ballimp gargles the sentiments of the many over the few when he stands on his hind legs and says:

"I am for moderation now and for all times. Especially after the seventeenth drink."

That's logic. But the minute he is elected you can find him and the vice president inhaling a soda water with two straws.

The history of our candidates shows that an election promise ain't any more reliable than tieing a stocking around a punctured tire.

When the boys are elected they immediately contract that delightful disease known as aphasia of the obligations.

They can't remember a thing they said on the stump. If they recollect they deny it.

That's politics, my friends. Your word is as good as your bond. And you know what bonds are worth on this market.

TWO YOUTHS KILLED, PAIR INJURED, AS AUTO HITS POLE

PITTSBURGHER HIT BY TWO CARS DIES

Penn Avenue Man Loses Life In Youngstown; Fireman, Others Hurt in Traffic Here

Three persons were dead today and others were recovering in hospitals as a result of automobile accidents reported in the Pittsburgh district.

Robert P. Kolling, 24, of 1705 Banksville road, and Charles J. Dienger, 26, of 1030 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, were killed when their machine struck a pole at Thirty-third street and Liberty avenue early yesterday.

Police said the car was driven by Harry J. Weibrauch, son of Battalion Fire Chief H. J. Weibrauch. The driver and Robert Provano, 18, of 1211 Jane street, also a passenger, are in West Penn Hospital with skull fractures.

KILLED IN OHIO

Nathan Morris, 32, of 2636 Penn avenue, was killed last night in Youngstown, O., being knocked down by one automobile and struck by a second. The second accident occurred before witnesses could rush to his assistance. He died in a hospital later.

Edwin J. Harper, 38, of 3107 Niagara street, fireman of No. 34 Engine Company, was in Mercy Hospital with leg injuries received when a fire truck on which he was riding collided with a trolley at Forbes and Wightman streets.

Five women residents of Martin's Ferry, O., were slightly hurt when their car, in which they were returning home from a Pittsburgh theater, overturned in Washington road, near Brookside boulevard.

3 CARS IN CRASH

Mrs. Mary Birkhimer, 50, of 3009 Hazelburg street was recovering from injuries received when a car, driven by V. E. Obel, 50, of 544 Miller avenue, Clairton, collided with another driven by Paul Palonis, of 2111 Sidney street, forcing it into one driven by Mrs. Birkhimer's husband, A. Birkhimer.

Margaret Knight, 35, of 620 Columbia avenue, Swissvale, was treated at Homepathic Hospital for abrasions suffered, police said, when her machine struck a tree at Fifth and Aiken avenues.

Mrs. E. P. Thorne, 35, of 811 St. James street, was slightly injured when her car struck the curb at Fifth and Highland avenues.

Margaret Ellin, 20, of 120 Ferry street, McKeesport, was in McKeesport Hospital in a serious condition with injuries received when a machine driven by Galton Latovitch, of Clairton, plunged over an embankment near Large. Latovitch has a fracture of the left arm.

WHERE BANDITS LOST BATTLE

BANDIT-WRECKED BANKING ROOM AT WAVELAND, IND. . . . VIGILANTES ROUTED GUNMEN

Nine charges of nitro-glycerin wrecked this vault and the bank building while the town's vigilantes, summoned by a telephone operator, surrounded the building and engaged in a battle with "six to ten" heavily armed bandits. More than 200 shots were fired. One of the bandits was wounded and the funds of the bank were saved. They escaped.

DIVERS FIND SUB FLOODED

PORTLAND, England, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Divers working on the sunken British submarine M-2 at the bottom of the English Channel have found that the vessel is flooded from stem to stern.

It was persistently rumored here that two bodies had been found jammed in the submarine's conning tower. Dockyard authorities, however, said they had no knowledge of such a discovery.

Naval officials assumed that the 61 officers and men of the crew had a swift and merciful death from drowning when the submersible dived and was lost in nine fathoms off the promontory of Portland Bill in Dead Man's Bay.

The possibility that the water trickled in slowly could not be ignored, however, they said.

Mine Blast Kills Eight in Belgium

CHARLEROI, Belgium, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A fire-damp explosion nearly 4,000 feet down in a coal mine near here today had taken a toll of eight known dead and it was believed 18 others entombed by the blast would not be reached alive.

Dollar Worth $275 Among Loot of Erie Robber

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—A silver dollar valued at $275 has been stolen from the home of Howard F. Schade. The coin is worth so much because it bears the date of 1812. Other old coins, a diamond ring and money also were taken in the burglary.

YOUNG ELOPER TRIES SUICIDE

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—(INS.)—Disconsolate because he could not support his 15-year old bride, Jack Ellis, 17, early today shot himself a few minutes after he had kissed her goodnight and left her at her parents' home. He is not expected to live.

The couple eloped a week ago with another young boy and girl to Napoleon, O., for a double marriage.

Elmer Feerel, brother-in-law of Ellis, said:

Feerel's 14-year old daughter and Clinton Allen, 19, were also married on the trip to Ohio.

'Mountie,' Believed Fire Victim, Suicide

PRINCE ALBERT, Saskatchewan, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Corp. E. Brian Burstall, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who was believed to have been accidentally burned to death at Stony Rapids, died from a self-inflicted bullet wound, an official report disclosed today.

Member of a prominent Quebec family, the corporal is believed to have become despondent after four years of lonely life on the northern patrols.

Actor's Life Savings Stolen From Trunk

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—It took Harry Benpell, a vaudeville actor, 23 years to save $800. It took a thief only a few minutes to steal it from a trunk in his bedroom, Benpell reported to police. He withdrew the money from a bank recently.

MEDICAL CARE TO AID PRIEST'S RELIEF WORK

Father Cox Announces Clinic With 2 Doctors; Co[illegible] Maps Details on Hill

The Rev. James R. Cox announced today that the Allegheny County Medical Society will establish a clinic in Old St. Patrick's parish, probably on Seventeenth street, this week.

The clinic, in which two doctors will be stationed, will attend to the medical needs of persons applying for relief to Father Cox, who has maintained a bread line and relief station for the needy for many months.

"The clinic, to be set up through the kindness of the medical society, will fill a long-felt need in this district. We shall supply needed drugs through an arrangement I feel sure I can make with a nearby drug store. Medical care may forestall a hang-over of the depression in the form of ill health among the present needy."

The final meeting of a Hill district committee which has been rounding out details of the community council to function in that community, will be held tonight, Miss Isabel Kennedy said. She hopes to see the group actually functioning tomorrow or Wednesday.

Other groups, notably the South Side, Manchester and Woods Run Councils, should be ready soon, she said. As the groups are organized, she will center her efforts on other districts.

Father Cox to Give Speech in Overbrook

Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, will speak tomorrow night in the Volunteer Firemen's Home, Library road, Overbrook. Public address systems will be installed, officials said, to take care of crowds who may not be able to gain admittance to the hall.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—William J. Ruof, former vice president of the First Central Trust Company of Akron, today pleaded guilty to embezzlement alleged to have run as high as $400,000. He was given 16 years' imprisonment and fined $24,000 by Federal Judge Samuel H. West.

WOMAN SLAIN, JOKE BLAMED

Mrs. Edna Vitilla, of 401 East General Robinson street, was dead today because of a lark. She refused to explain her relationship to an uncle after her fiance, Paul Muschnick, 46, had objected to her talking with him, according to homicide detectives.

The detectives said Mrs. Vitilla and Muschnick had gone to the wake of a friend in the home of Constable John Mason. Ernest Kasten, 31, of 823 Brownsville road, accompanied them.

As they were leaving, Mrs. Vitilla met her uncle and was talking, when Muschnick interrupted. It was said Mrs. Vitilla refused to explain their relationship. The trio returned to Mrs. Vitilla's home, where Muschnick is a roomer.

Muschnick fired five shots at his fiancee as she prepared a lunch, Kasten told police. Kasten said he struck Muschnick with a steahling coffee pot and knocked him unconscious, after which he notified police. Mrs. Vitilla at the Allegheny General Hospital, where she died shortly after she was admitted, told Detectives James O'Kane and Robert Carroll that Muschnick was jealous.

IT'S GREAT TO HAVE A MOTHER WHO KNOWS!

MISS RUTH WILLIAMS

Ruth's mother knew about REM

"Whenever one of my four children, Ruth, George, Robert or Theodore, starts to cough," says Mrs. W. B. Williams of 133 Union St., Taylor, Pa., "I get them the REM -- and it isn't long before they stop coughing. REM has been my stand-by for several years now. I first got a bottle when I saw an ad in the Scranton Times when my husband had a cough. I got it at Thomas' Drug Store on Main Ave. and it gave him such relief that I started using it for the children, too. It's a blessing for a mother." REM clings to the throat as it's swallowed, cuts the phlegm, clears the air passages. It's significant that with hundreds of cough-and-cold remedies, millions, nevertheless, insist on REM.

Remember, you are buying medicine! There is no substitute for REM's exclusive, effective formula

Have you heard Lincoln's story about the dog?

"If you call a tail a leg," says Abe, "how many legs has a dog?"

"Five," you reply.

Neither does calling A & P, America's Foremost Grocer, make us so. But the fact that over 6,000,000 of you housewives in every part of the country have chosen us as your grocer does make us America's Foremost Food Merchant.

At A & P, we're all working together, 90,000 of us, to see that you get the most and the best food for your money. We're doing this because we want to continue to deserve your trade.

Calling a tail a leg, doesn't make it a leg, but 6,000,000 housewives have really made A & P America's Foremost Food Merchant.

SCHOOL DESIGN HERE TERMED BEST IN U. S.

Lincoln Building Architects Lauded for Good Results Achieved With Economy

By PENELOPE REDD

"Lincoln" is appropriately enough, the name of the school selected by national educational officials as the finest designed elementary school in the United States. Moreover, the school, recently completed, is in Pittsburgh, on Frankstown avenue, just beyond the East Liberty section.

Miss Redd

The two Pittsburgh architects, Thomas Pringle and Oliver J. Robling, who designed the school had a mediocre site with a few well shaped old trees as the only asset.

They were obliged to solve a purely functional problem of arranging required units of space in a brick structure. They have expressed their solution in a thoroughly contemporary building, elevated above the colloquial through the language of fine design.

COMMONPLACE AVOIDED

The functionalism of the building is not overemphasized by modernistic contrasts of strange materials. On the other hand, although only brick is used, the commonplace has also been sidestepped.

Thus, a cubical school building has been ordered by the intelligence of the designers into a mass of brick with well disposed forms. The severe edges are relieved by the masses of stair tower and chimney designed as octagonal forms.

One of the problems that makes so many school buildings monotonous and lacking in architectural solidity is the imposed requirement of ample window space to floor area.

In the Lincoln School, a brick pilaster of unusual design has been devised to define the bays. Thus, the solidity of the structure is retained without obstructing the light.

VARIETY WITH ECONOMY

Probably the most notable aspect of the structure is the constant movement of the minor elements in the design as in the device of the pilasters and the diamond-shaped brick patterns used to define the spandrels at the floor levels between the windows.

The complete structure is an admirable example of the variety that may be secured economically by agile minds.

About the whole there is the modern sense of movement combined with extensive concentration.

RED CLASH SEEN BY CHURCHILL

CHICAGO, Feb. 8—(AP)—A closer union of all English-speaking people against "Communism and the disintegrating forces of disunited Europe" was advocated last night by the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the British exchequer and noted statesman.

In an address punctuated by prolonged applause Mr. Churchill declared he foresaw a struggle between the armed Asiatic conception of Communism and the English-speaking ideal of individualism" that will be brought to bear on shaping mankind's destiny.

He was vigorously applauded when, turning to prohibition, he suggested America might find it helpful were 10 or 12 millions in taxes on beer, spirits and wine collected by the government "instead of, as now, by less desirable hands."

ATTACKS DOG IN FIGHT, FINED

During a free-for-all fight in an alley near Wabash avenue early last night, Garvin Smith, 33, of Steubenville pike, attacked a German police dog and was strangling it when pulled off, it was testified in Morals Court today.

The fight, which involved Smith, J. W. Donohue, 34, of 153 Wabash avenue and Tony Capodruce, 17, of 155½ Wabash avenue started when Capodruce reprimanded Smith and Donohue for walking in the alley. The dog barked during the battle Capodruce said and Smith attacked it.

Smith testified that Capodruce turned the dog on him. Sidestepping its attack Smith said, he grabbed the animal as it lunged past him.

Capodruce was discharged and Smith and Donohue were each fined $5 or five days in jail.

BANK BANDITS KILL SLEUTH

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 8—(AP)—O. B. Carpenter, a detective, was killed and Ed Young, another detective, was wounded early today by bandits they surprised apparently preparing to rob the Mercantile Trust Company. The bandits escaped.

The detectives, in a police car, drove past the trust company shortly after 6 o'clock. They found the bandits had captured the janitor. As the detectives approached they were met by gunfire.

Police theorized the bandits planned to hold the janitor and all other employes who arrived until the time lock on the vault opened.

Injured by Truck, Driver Arrested

Harold Jones, 23, of 712 West North avenue, suffered a fractured skull and a fractured leg when struck by a Harmony Creamery truck in Federal street, near Stockton avenue, today. The driver, Anthony Dolmovich, 18, was arrested on a reckless driving charge. The Allegheny General Hospital reported Jones' condition as serious.

Population Center In Chicago Has No Resident

The answer was: Nobody.

The corner of Polk and Halsted streets recently was listed as Chicago's center of population. On one corner the reporter found a restaurant, a meat market on another, a vacant store building on a third, and an uninhabited portion of Hull House on the fourth.

Holdup Suspect Held at Hearing

William Buzzo, 23, of 10 Stockton avenue, was held for court on a robbery charge by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in connection with the holdup of J. W. Henderson, of McKeesport, son of Dr. W. L. Henderson, County Poor director, on January 13. Buzzo was arrested when he sent a friend to redeem a diamond ring, stolen in the robbery, from a pawn broker, police said.

Woman's Strangling Probed at Wheeling

STUDY DISEASE OF LION VICTIM

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 8—(AP)—The possibility that Clyde Beatty, wild animal trainer, who has been in a Peru, Ind., hospital since he was bitten, January 23, by Nero, an African lion, is suffering from an infection rarely encountered in this country, is being investigated at the Indiana University Hospital here.

Dr. Thurman B. Rice, associate professor of bacteriology and public health, said he is inclined to believe Beatty may be infected with one of the pausterella germs, a group closely related to tularemia, or rabbit fever, and to bubonic plague. He said:

"The disease is unusual in this country. I doubt if more than half a dozen doctors in the United States have seen cases of it."

He described the disease as "serious," because the medical profession has had little or no experience in treating it.

Bituminous Coal Output Falls Off

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(AP)—At 6,379,000 tons, the production of bituminous coal in the nation stood about stationary during the last week in January in comparison to that of the week previous.

For the week ending January 23 Pennsylvania's bituminous tonnage dropped to 1,500,000 tons from the 1,605,000-ton mark of the week ending January 16. Similar reductions occurred in both fields of West Virginia with the southern field mining 1,187,000 and the northern, 420,000.

MAN, BOY SLAIN AT PARTIES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP)—A stabbing and a shooting brought death as the culmination of week-end parties in the mountains.

Robert Moore, 17, of Clarence, was killed in an isolated hunting club near Snowshoe and John Eckstein, 40, of Johnstown, died early today in a hospital of a stab wound in his stomach. Warren M. Heaton, 40, miner and father of eight children, was held on a murder charge in connection with the death of Moore, and Mrs. Mary Eckstein, 44, will be charged with murder in connection with the death of her husband.

Witnesses said Heaton attempted to assist his son to "crash" a party at the club and that during the melee he fired point blank at Moore. Heaton told officers he had been drinking.

Persons who saw the stabbing in a mountain cabin in Westmoreland County near the Somerset County line said Mr. and Mrs. Eckstein quarreled. Officers said the woman admitted she had attacked her husband with a bread-knife.

Eckstein died without changing the story he told when he entered the hospital, that he was stabbed by an unidentified man who left him by the highway.

A SHORT time ago, all a comedian had to do was to start a story with "Once there was a Scotchman—" and he had a sure-fire laugh coming.

But people aren't laughing at Scotch thrift any more. They're imitating the Scotchman at every opportunity.

Thinner pay envelopes have changed their point of view. They've started everyone hunting for bargains.

And Orange American is the great bargain in regular gasoline. It's the gas of old-time quality at the new day price. It's the gas that enables you to wring every possible mile out of the dollar you invest in regular gasoline.

And more than that! When you buy Orange American Gas, you're not only saving money—but you're saving your car, too! Orange American not only makes your car go farther—gallon by gallon—than any regular gasoline, but its uniformly high quality preserves and protects your motor!

STARS OF LOCAL PROMOTER ENDURE

WHEN YOU'RE SPEAKING of Pittsburgh's greatest basketball builders of the past, how about your old friend, Joe Goldman? No floor operator anywhere ever did a more lasting job of it in developing top-grade talent than did the manager of the once famous Morrys. His teams passed out, as they all do, but his players have carried on to individual success with what they learned under his tutelage.

Joe Goldman

Almost every man who played for Joe branched out successfully in one basketball field or another. From Goldman's team came at least half a dozen coaches and several officials, while three players of his greatest quintet, the one of 1926-27, went to the American Professional League. Probably the most successful of Goldman's former charges as mentors are Chick Davies, in whom Duquesne University has one of the best coaches in the college ranks; Bill Campbell, who seldom fails to finish in an honor position with Homestead High School, and Ken Loeffler, who has made an excellent record at Geneva College.

THEN THERE WAS Peck Lee, in charge of athletics at Ellwood City High until he accepted a post as deputy sheriff in Lawrence County. Lloyd Jordan was another, first going to Jeannette High as coach and then to Colgate University, where he still holds the reins, though considering an offer to go to Miami (O.) University. George Ramsay and Dr. Mickey Gross coached semi-pro teams successfully and had opportunities to go higher, but Ramsay preferred the banking business and Gross stuck to his profession as a dentist. Ramsay also had offers to play in the big pro league.

Moon Klinzing, Pip Koehler and Whitey Lytell, all Morry stars, advanced to the American League, Koehler going to Ft. Wayne and the two others to Cleveland. Yams Wallace, after coaching independent teams, has turned to officiating, and reports say he is improving with each succeeding game. Now comes Klinzing also in the role of an official, well equipped to make good.

GOLDMAN HAD SUCH additional well-known players as Ben Lubic, Dave Mervis, Brick Fidler and Speedo Loughran. Lubic, now a practicing attorney, was coach at Carnegie Tech for several seasons. Mervis coached here with success and then became a capable official until his business demanded all his time.

Loughran is busy selling insurance. Fidler, one of the better local centers, kept on as a player until time forced him to the sidelines. Granting that most of these player were quite proficient when Goldman took hold of them, Joe at least helped them in one way or another, and must be given credit for having produced as notable an array of floor talent as any single manager that ever operated locally.

RETIRING FROM PROFESSIONAL football, Ernie Nevers says that the best back he ever played with or against was Red Grange, and that the best lineman he ever saw was Duke Slater, Iowa's Negro tackle, named on Walter Camp's second all-America team in 1921. Never rates Slater the greatest offensive lineman that ever played. "He could open a hole that a turtle could make yardage through," Ernie says. Slater, by the way, has also made a remarkable record for durability. Last season was his eighteenth on the gridiron. He played eight years of scholastic and collegiate football and has completed 10 in the professional ranks.

George Susce

GEORGE SUSCE, former Schenley High School catcher and grid star, today was notified by the Detroit baseball officials to leave next Sunday for the Tigers' California training camp. The Oakland athlete was the ranking catcher of the Three-I League last season as he performed for Springfield, Ill.

Scout Jack Zellers, of the Detroit club, purchased Susce for Beaumont in the Texas League, but evidently figured him to be a fine major league prospect, and accordingly the youngster's contract with Beaumont, signed a few days ago, was transferred to Detroit. Susce is much changed in ability and temperament as he prepares for his second shot at a berth in the big show.

AS A RAW rookie, still in his teens, George was picked up by Manager Burt Shotton, of the Phillies, just after completing his high school work. Susce had so many good playing traits, together with unusual strength, that Shotton elected to keep him around instead of farming him out.

But the step from the scholastic team to the majors was too great and George eventually landed in the smaller circuits. He caught for Buffalo and Kansas City before dropping to the Three-I circuit. At Springfield he was given a chance to become the regular catcher. He jumped at it and batted better than .400 while doing a good job behind the bat.

ZELLERS RECENTLY WROTE Susce and advised him he had more ability than most of the other Detroit catchers, but cautioned him against the ultra-aggressive spirit which has held the youngster back. George has been in a number of fist fights, but apparently he has better control of his temper now that he has reached manhood. He is a youthful Hercules in physique and those who have studied him in action say he has a fine chance to come through as a diamond star. Susce is glad in the knowledge that Jewel Ens is to be with him. Jewel expects to leave for the Tiger camp on the same date.

TRACK EXPERTS WHO had seen signs of record possibilities in Gene Venzke a year earlier, when he ran Leo Lermond and Ray Conger off their feet in a mile race, found their expectations realized Saturday night when Venzke, at the Millrose games in New York, tore off the fastest mile ever run in America.

Only twice in any part of the world has Venzke's 4:11 1-5 been beaten. Paavo Nurmi did 4:10 2-5 at Stockholm in 1923, and Jules La Doumegue set the world outdoor record of 4:09 1-5 in Paris last summer. Even these great marks may not be beyond the reach of the Pottstown school runner, who incidentally gives hope of an American victory in the Olympic mile.

THAT SOUP IS good for a fighter in training is declared by Max Baer, California heavyweight, who said that his failure to prove a strong finisher in his first invasion of the East was due to his not having been trained right.

Max Baer

"Frankie Burns, who used to train me, had the wrong method," Max insists. "He used to dry me by depriving me of soups and other liquids before a fight. The result was that I was weak when I entered the ring and tired fast.

"NOW I AM eating what I want, including plenty of soup," Baer adds, and instead of scaling only a little above 200 I fight around 220. It's brainless for a heavyweight to dry out. But when I was young in the game I didn't know any better. Bob McAllister, the old middleweight, is training me now, and he puts me in the ring in shape to go the route." Wilbur Wood expresses the opinion that one veteran who will not agree with Max that it is perfectly proper for a heavyweight to load up with liquids. He found Dan Morgan to be one handler of fighters who is particularly set against the practice. Even beef broth is out, as far as Dan is concerned.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

In town today are two canny gentlemen of the prize ring. They have a rendezvous at Motor Square Garden tonight which they hope will be the means of attracting many cash customers to that arena.

They won't strike a punch. In fact, they're the best of friends, old cronies of many a battle in the roped square. They don't stop any punches, neither do they toss any.

You see, they're a couple of managers. They do their battling by proxy. One of them is Max Waxman, of Baltimore and Newark, N. J. and the other is Billy McCarney, of Philadelphia, New York and wherever he chances to hang his fedora.

FAMOUS MANAGERS

Waxman is the gentleman—if you'll pardon the term in a fistic story—who piloted Joe Dundee to the world welterweight championship over a hard road and now is steering Joe's brother, Vince, toward the middleweight crown. McCarney is allied with Joe Jacobs in the management of Max Schmeling, the current heavyweight champion, and, years ago, in the White Hope era, he was the director of Luther McCarthy, the best of the lot, who died dramatically at the height of his fame during a bout with Arthur Pelky in Calgary.

Tonight, the pair of managers will be the chief seconds of the two heavyweights who do battle in the 10-round main bout in the Garden ring. Tony Galento, of Jersey City, fighting for Waxman, and Natie Brown, of California, faring forth under the McCarney banner. Many times these two cagy pilots have steered proteges against each other and this fighting racket is a serious business with them. They're big shots in the game.

GALENTO A PUNCHER

But perhaps we should not permit the presence of the managers to overshadow the battle itself. Galento is the pudgy fellow who turned in the most sensational knockout in years here when he stopped big George Panka, of Homestead, with a single punch at the Garden. Brown has appeared here in a draw bout with Billy Jones, the uncrowned light-heavyweight champion, at Hickey Park, Millvale.

All of the fight fans like a puncher. Those who missed Galento on his other appearance here likely will come out to see if he can repeat or if that one-punch kayo with a left hook was a fluke. Brown is a tough fellow to fight, but a punch is a punch, and, if Galento can tag him as he tagged Panka, Natie ought to go out like a light. If the bout goes the limit, Natie has a chance to grab the duke, which is slang for the decision.

Notables of Baseball at Dreyfuss Funeral

LANDIS, LEAGUE PRESIDENTS AND OTHER DIGNITARIES PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD LOCAL MAGNATE

Captains and kings of baseball, the National Pastime, gathered to pay homage to Barney Dreyfuss, president and principal owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, at his funeral here yesterday. Left to right, they are: Back row—Bill Hinchman, Pirate scout; George Gibson, Pirate manager, and William O. DeWitt, treasurer of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals. Third row—James J. Tierney, secretary of the New York Giants; Frank B. York, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers; Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, and Bill McKechnie, manager of the Boston Braves. Second row—L. C. Ruch, president of the Philadelphia Phillies; Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, and William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs. Front row—John A. Heydler, president of the National League; K. M. Landis, High Commissioner of Baseball; William Harridge, president of the American League, and Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants. Truly a remarkable assemblage.

TITLE CUE TILT TONIGHT

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, and Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, will fight it out for the world three-cushion billiards championship, not the least attractive feature of which is a reward of $10,000, tonight.

They go into the final match of the long tournament tied for first place, with seven victories and three defeats, and about as evenly matched as any two finalists in the history of the championship. Kieckhefer has scored 472 points, in 480 innings, for an average of .983, while Reiselt's average is .947, by 448 points in 473 innings.

It will be the second time they have met for the title in tournament play, and Kieckhefer will be out to repeat the triumph he scored over the Philadelphia German five years ago.

Another playoff will be started this afternoon, a three-way affair involving Layton and Gus Copulos, of Eugene, Ore., and Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, N. Y., for fourth place. Scoville and Copulos meet in the opening match. Tomorrow afternoon Layton will meet the loser of the Copulos-Scoville game. That night he tackles the winner.

Tomorrow night a playoff for second money will be staged between Thurnblad and the loser of the championship tussle.

Second place will be worth about $5,100, with around $1,800 going to the third-place finisher. Fourth place will pay about $1,500; fifth, $1,150, and sixth, $950. The last four entrants will split about $4,500.

Winston-Salem Club Is Sold to Giants

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 8.—(AP.)—Purchase by the New York Giants, of the Winston-Salem, N. C., club, of the Piedmont Baseball League, was announced last night by Fred J. Voos, who negotiated the deal for the National Leaguers. The Giants also own the Bridgeport Eastern League club, of which Voos is president.

Pirates' Grounds May Be Called Dreyfuss Field

Intimate associates of Barney Dreyfuss today were said to be advocating a plan to change the name of the home of his Pirates from Forbes Field to Dreyfuss Field.

What is conceded to be the prettiest park in the country was named in honor of Gen. John Forbes, a famed British officer in the battle with the French and Indians at Fort Duquesne.

Officials of the Pittsburgh club stated they had heard nothing of the reported plan.

DIAMOND KINGS PAY TRIBUTE TO LEADER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Regal Kings of Baseball and thousands of their loyal subjects bowed their heads in sorrow as Barney Dreyfuss was laid to rest yesterday.

The said rites of the church were attended by the ruling monarchs of the sport who help to fill the spacious Rodef Shalom Temple wherein the funeral services were held. And Barney's diamond associates remained with him right up to the grave. The revered magnate was interred in the Dreyfuss family lot in West View Cemetery, his grave being close by that of his beloved son, Samuel, who died about one year ago.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball; John A. Heydler, president of the National League, and William Harridge, president of the American League, the trio representing all elements of major and minor league baseball, formed the keystone of a galaxy of diamond luminaries in attendance to pay honor to a great builder.

TRIBUTE TO COLLEAGUE

The saddened visitors well knew they were offering a tribute to a man who mixed unquestioned integrity and sportsmanship with rare talents and daring as he helped to lay the foundation for a sport that now rests on an appealing and substantial pedestal. These men knew Barney was one of the mariners who charted the ship of baseball through seas of dissension.

Every club in the National League was officially represented at the funeral. The departed magnate was the dean of baseball owners, so it was fitting that the senior circuit, to which he had given approximately 40 years of his life, should have a full turnout for the sad occasion.

Those attending from the National League and the clubs they represented follow:

WAGNER AT BIER

Dreyfuss' own club was represented by its own officials as well as by a large group of employes. Among those who felt the grief keenly was Groundkeeper John (Jack) Fogarty, a long-time employe of such loyalty as to touch the heart of the owner of the Buccos.

And among the 60 honorary pallbearers of distinction, none was in the public gaze more than John (Hans) Wagner, often called baseball's greatest player, and a man who held a genuine love for the owner of the Pittsburgh club.

Scattered about the throng at the synagogue were personalities whose names make the baseball welkin ring. Men like Billy Murray, Bill Hinchman, Jewel Ens, Wilbur Cooper, Marty Berghammer, Jack Onslow, Deacon Phillippe, Otto Jordan, John Gruber and others were there to show their respect to the memory of a man who had given so much to the sport they love.

The baseball touch was distinctive in the hours preceding the removal of the body from the home in the Schenley Apartments to the synagogue. The foyer of the Schenley Hotel was dotted with the clubowners and others who have an intimate connection with the game. The diamond folks for the most part paid their respects to the family as they visited at the bier of the departed magnate.

LIKENED UNTO GIBRALTAR

Judge Landis, when asked for an expression of the Pittsburgher, gave out a short utterance that rang with power and eloquence. The Judge said:

"When I think of Barney Dreyfuss, I think of Integrity—Fidelity—Gibraltar!"

The body was taken to the synagogue at 1:30 p. m., where it was viewed by the public for one and one-half hours. The huge temple was well filled when Rabbi S. H. Goldensen and Rabbi B. B. Glazer appeared to officiate at the services. Rabbi Goldensen interspersed the ritual of prayer with a glowing tribute to the departed baseball man and citizen.

PRAISED AS GENIUS

Expressions of sorrow continued to pour into the home through yesterday. To the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph came one from Joe Devine in far-off San Francisco. Joe was in the employ of Dreyfuss for many years and the death removed from him a real friend. Devine wired:

"Baseball has lost a real genius, a man who cannot be replaced either in foresight or kindness. May he sleep in a diamond of flowers."

LOCALS DOWN AKRON ELEVEN BY 2-1 SCORE

By TOM BIRKS

Playing a great defensive game on a slippery muddy field, the Castle Shannon Morrys qualified to meet the Cleveland Shamrocks in the Western finals of the National amateur cup by defeating the defending champions, the Akron Goodyears, 2 goals to 1 at South Park yesterday afternoon with 11,000 fans in attendance.

The Morrys scored the first goal after one minute of play. Bennick smashing the ball into the net following some great play by Zeewan on the left wing. The goal was flashed across, and Wasko gave away a corner kick. Mac Greevan dropped the ball into the goalmouth and Bennick had it in the net in a flash.

The Morrys kept up this spirit for 10 minutes and the Akron defense had a rough time. Finally the pressure was lifted and the Rubbertown boys treated the capacity crowd to the finest football work that has been flashed here in many months.

FORWARD LINE FAILS

Kratoval, Sickles and Van Jura were playing great for the Morrys but again the forward line was a failure. Barrett and Bennick failed utterly to utilize the speed and shooting power of Zeewan. He was neglected throughout.

Half time arrived with the Morrys leading by the only goal scored. Akron had been playing brilliant soccer in mid-field but could do little when Van Jura and Peckovitch were reached.

The Akrons pressed hard in the second half and after 57 minutes Sellars shot from 12 yards. Bennick touched the ball but could not stop it from going in the net.

The mud took its toll on the players and play slowed up. Akron was having most of the play. Robertson, its center forward, was hurt, and Burns replaced him.

After 72 minutes of play Sickles flashed the ball across the goalmouth. Barrett and Zeewan had an easy time touching it into the corner of the net, with Challenfield well beaten. That finished the scoring for the day.

AKRON MAKES HIT

Akron was a revelation and won much favor from the crowd with a snappy display of soccer. Zeewan was the only forward who did anything worth while, although Sickles, Kratoval and Van Jura were brilliant. Barrett tried to play too much solo soccer and neglected Zeewan and Bennick failed to keep his wings together.

Cosby, Bingham, Craig and Stevenson played splendidly for the champions; they gave a great exhibition, although they could not get goals. The lineup:

Akron	Morrys
Clark	G. Challenfield
Van Jura	R. B. Stevenson
Peckovitch	C. B. Craig
Sellars	R. H. Bingham
Patterson	C. H. Cosby
Robertson	L. H. Hughes
Williamson	L. W. Wasko
Hodgson	R. W. Sickles
Burns	C. F. Kratoval
Barrett	L. F. Craig
Zeewan	R. F. Bingham

Goals—Bennick, Barrett. Referee—Mr. McArdle. Linesmen—O'Connor and Evans.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: THE GIANT'S CAUSEWAY—The "Giant's Causeway" is a picturesque promontory situated on the north coast of County Antrim, Ireland. The pillars composing it are made of columnar basalt in the shape of closely fitting, irregular hexagons, between 15 and 20 inches in diameter, and from a distance present a magnificent view. They are not unlike a causeway constructed for the purpose of enabling a giant to cross the marshy expanse of the coast. THE COSTLY MINIATURE CAR—A gold-and-silver-plated miniature model of the eight-cylinder racing car which won the Indianapolis auto race in 1930 was made by an automobile salesman who spent three and one-half years on its construction. It has an eight-cylinder motor that functions perfectly, as well as a complete miniature crankshaft, piston and rods, valves and cam shafts, clutch, pinion and ring gear, differential, a four-speed transmission, universal joints, four-wheel brakes, steering gear, magneto, spark plugs, intake and exhaust manifolds, and is a front-wheel-drive machine. The car is 18½ inches high and weighs 15½ pounds. The parts are of steel, brass, copper and chrome, with the engine hood silver-plated and the wire wheels gold-plated. This Lilliputian racer is valued by its constructor at $10,000.

TOMORROW: THE FIRING LIFE OF A BIG GUN.

SCHENLEY HIGH TO RISK LEAD TOMORROW

By JULIUS LEVIN

The championship of Section 1 in the City League will be settled tomorrow afternoon when Coach Walter Gross' Schenley passers present leaders face Fifth Avenue High School on the Schenley floor.

Fifth Avenue boasts the only victory scored over the Schenley quintet this season and if it succeeds in making it two straight tomorrow, the Uptowners will be in a fine position to clinch the Section 1 title.

School Notes

George Woodman, athletic director at Carrick High School, winners of the Class A football championship last fall, announced this week that he will be a candidate for next season. The new mentor succeeds Charles (Speedy) Nee, who resigned a week ago Monday.

The loss of Mike Marshall appears to have affected the play of Hans Hudson's Braddock quintet. Braddock suffered its first setback in Section VIII when it bowed to last year's state champions, the Scott High passers. Braddock previously had defeated the champions on the Scott floor.

Spring will have only four lettermen back for football when practice is ordered during the first week of September. Fourteen members of the first string squad have completed their careers at Carlynton and Charles Woodman and Chas will have to be considerable rebuilding.

Gene Sullivan, brilliant forward of the undefeated Homestead High quintet, leader in Section VII, has moved into first place in the individual scoring race of that group. Sullivan gained a total of 4 points against Clairton last Friday.

Dave Kerr, former star of the Cleveland Rosies, who attended law in mysterious ways, the latter showed the Hampden lawyers how to play basketball when the Rosies were in their heyday, has gone far in the N. P. L. A. L. tournament.

Jack Rosenberg will bring his Rankin passers to Homestead Friday night. Homestead defeated Rankin on the latter's floor earlier in the season, the setback breaking a 12-game winning streak.

REITER IS ILL IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Marty Reiter, star guard of the Duquesne University basketball team, is confined to his room here at the Hotel New Yorker suffering from an attack of the grippe. Reiter was taken ill before the game with Brooklyn Kaceys last Friday night, but participated anyway. However he was unable to don his uniform for the New York City College fray on Saturday.

John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics of Duquesne University, stayed over with the sick player. The attending physician stated last night it likely will be several days before Reiter is able to leave his sick bed. He seems definitely lost to the Dukes for their contest tomorrow with Geneva College at the Pitt Stadium.

Forbes

Nearer Bottom, Hence Nearer Recovery Now.

By B. C. FORBES

NEARER BOTTOM

Progress in organizing to overcome obstacles.

PESSIMISTS COULD describe latest developments differently. They could emphasize that stocks suffered a substantial net loss last week, that domestic bonds declined almost daily, that foreign bonds also weakened. They could dwell dolefully on a relapse in wheat, corn and other grains, on a fresh fall in copper to a depth never exceeded, to a slump in raw sugar to the poorest price ever recorded, to a like break in rubber, also in cocoa, to weakness in beef, butter, coffee, zinc, silk, hides.

B. C. Forbes

They could harp upon a downward trend in the general price level since the year began, upon a record-breaking number of commercial bankruptcies, upon continuance of bank failures, upon renewed evidences of hoarding, upon absence of pick up in business as a whole.

They could also, truthfully depict sentiment in high financial places as lacking in confidence. They could rub in the fact that responsible bankers are acutely alarmed over the Glass bank bill. They could, too, present a black picture of the Shanghai situation and the dynamite involved. They could put a bearish interpretation upon the substantial outflow of gold from this country. They could shake their heads over the poor annual reports now making their appearance and the frequent unfavorable dividend announcements.

NO UNBIASED ANALYSIS would seek to ignore these and other happenings not conducive to exuberance.

GENUINE PROGRESS is being made in creating reconstruction instruments.

The railroads have won a peaceful wage victory; they secured a rate advance; they have been provided with vast credit reservoirs. The reconstruction finance corporation makes possible the prevention of banking, railway, agricultural and other receiverships. Congress has exhibited a wholesome co-operative spirit. The administration has clothed with novel, far-reaching powers, a group of dynamic officials, including Chairman Dawes, of the R. F. C., the newly named Secretary of the Treasury, Ogden L. Mills, Gov. Meyer, of the Federal Reserve Board, and president of the R. F. C.

Active steps have been taken to combat hoarding—although the wisdom of bestowing governmental prominence to hoarding is seriously questioned.

IN FOOTBALL they now talk much about "timing" effective tactics. Unfortunately the administration's "timing" of its well meant activities has been lamentably unsatisfactory. Almost without exception, every constructive move has been regretably late.

It is equally true in America that deflation always cures itself and ushers in new and unexampled prosperity.

Hard as it is for the short-sighted to imagine such a thing possible, economic history inevitably will repeat itself.

We are nearer bottom today than we have been at any time in the last two years. Hence, we are nearer definite recovery.

U. S. BALLYHOO TO AID TRADE HELD FUTILE

Prosperity Job Loan Urged On Government Instead of Policy of Cheer Leading

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Feb. 8.—Government by ballyhoo has been futile in its attempt to intervene in the business cycle.

Hoarding is vicious and anti-social, but proclamations against economic slackerism tend to advertise the practice and to make persons who have been proceeding normally wonder what to do. Irrespective of fear psychology, the underlying logic of the situation points to the desirability of individual co-operation to keep the economic system functioning. Withdrawal of money by hoarders intensifies deflation and delays recovery.

Mr. Rukeyser

If, instead of being the national cheer leader, the federal government would supply jobs for at least some of the jobless through embarking on a vast public works program, its intervention in behalf of stability would be far more effective. Credit expansion is exceedingly desirable, but with it should go a program of production for utilizing it.

Governmental units in the United States unquestionably intensified the previous boom by extravagance in spending. They should have been economizing then, so that they would have an economic reserve for expansion now when private industry is stagnant.

Excessive economy now would add to the deflationary forces, but financial limitations, especially on the part of some local subdivisions, make at least some retrenchment necessary. The proposal of 46 leading professors of economics that a public works program for the federal government, states and cities be financed by a federal prosperity loan was based on the recognition that only the central government has sufficient credit to put over such a gigantic operation.

In meeting the present condition governments should distinguish between economically sound capital expenditures, such as useful public works, which constitute an investment, and mere operating expenses. Like private industry, government should seek to eliminate economic waste from all its activities.

The chief current objective should be to revive economic activity, to create jobs for the jobless, to expand the credit supply, and to arrest the decline of the price level. Government fiscal policy in this emergency should be subordinated to the larger goal of attaining economic normalcy, and in the future an intelligent public opinion should be aroused to prevent squandering by governments at a time when the consuming public is extravagant, and to forestall economizing by governments at a time individuals are paralyzed, afraid, and inactive.

STORM HALTS OLYMPICS

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 8.—(AP)—A storm of snow and wind, raging over the Adirondacks today, forced postponement for a day of the two-man bobsleigh race, featuring event of the fifth day of the 1932 winter Olympics.

Arthur Meyer, of Switzerland, and Erwin Hachman, of Germany, members of the international Olympic committee, who took charge of the bob run a week ago, ordered the first and second heats set over until tomorrow, with the third and fourth heats Wednesday.

Total times for the four heats will decide the winner among the 13 teams entered from eight nations.

Riders of the four-man bobs, who stage their competition Thursday and Friday, will not be affected by the postponement of the two-man runs unless bad weather continues.

The postponement left the day to the men's figure skaters, who started their two-day competition, on the indoor arena ice; the women's 500-meter speed skating exhibition; two hockey games and the final of the men's 10,000 meters.

Canada defeated Poland, 9-0, and the United States defeated Germany, 5-0, in Olympic hockey games yesterday. Emile St. Goddard won the 50-mile dog sled race exhibition in 4 hours, 23 minutes, 12 seconds.

As the field in the men's school figures worked through the first half of the day's prescribed exercises, completing the "lockers," "counters" and "change double three," it was the consensus of opinion of the experts that the old Swede, Karl Schaefer, of Austria, and Gillis Grafstrom, of Sweden, were well out in front of the field.

SKI CHAMPS CROWNED

At Omaha, Neb.—Sverre Fredheim, of Minneapolis, won the Class A event with leaps of 110 and 105 feet. Anders Haugen, of Gay, of the 1932 winter Olympics class, with leaps of 123 and 124 feet.

At West Lebanon, N. Y.—Bert Gjoll, of Norway, won with a leap of 179 feet, and his brother Sigmund was second with a leap of 172 feet.

DREYFUSSIANS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Many folks who had a speaking acquaintance with the late Barney Dreyfuss (anyone could enjoy this pleasure) prefaced the talk was of baseball) marveled at his tireless manner of fanning. The diamond sport had an unfathomed depth for Barney that was frequently reflected. On countless occasions the owner of the Pirates held up the wheels of industry at headquarters while he argued in an interesting and emphatic manner with a casual caller.

Barney's baseball pep manifested itself in many ways. And when he felt he was right on some conjecture he would go to the mat with the biggest star of the sport. This characteristic naturally worked up some gripping scenes, scores of which can be related by men who played for him over a long stretch of years.

Manager George Gibson, his tone wholly respectful, recites an interesting yarn concerning his former employer that cannot but bring smiles. It has to do with that period of baseball when Gibby, then a raw Canuck rookie, was breaking in as a Pirate. But let Gibby tell it.

"The Pirates were in Boston at the time," Gibson relates. "Mr. Dreyfuss was a young man and of course full of enthusiasm. We were beaten by the Beaneaters that day and the contest left some post-mortems. The owner of the club was a bit peeved over certain plays. Claude Ritchey being the victim of his critical judgment on one particular move.

"Well, Barney and Claude were coming down the main stem together and the fellows around the hotel could see they were arguing. It seems that Mr. Dreyfuss had informed Ritchey the latter was too slow on a crucial play. Anyhow, the climax arrived when Barney shouted:

"'I think I can beat you running myself!'

"Now this was a challenge that Ritchey hardly could sidestep and they paired off for a start. Our owner got the jump on Claude at the beginning of the race, but the second baseman overtook him and they were moving along at a good clip when Ritchey suddenly tumbled in a head-first plunge.

Between Rounds

The Garden's show is only one of four professional cards in the Pittsburgh district this week. On Wednesday, Lester Rogers presents Mose Boldy, of England, and Lou Farino, of New York, matched at 10 o'clock at the Mosque with Gary Bowers, Leonard and Dave Hilton, of the North Side, in the eight-round semi-final. Tony Marino, of McKeesport, meets Franklin Young, Detroit ringlet in the feature event at McKeesport on Thursday, and Eddie Kappler, Cleveland boy, and Jimmy Hughes, Akron boy, are to mix in an eight-round affair at the Arena on Friday.

The local fans will watch with interest Johnny Indrich's ten-title bout with Harry Dublinsky, of Milwaukee, in the Philadelphia Arena tonight. Indrich has been appointed here several times.

Battling Alger is reported much improved from his influenza attack of last week and may be able to return home within a few days.

Lee Meade, Erie Bantylight, making his first appearance in Erie last Friday night following a layoff of more than a year, showed good form in beating Wesley Farr, of Cleveland, and will be seen in Pittsburgh rings again shortly.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Drift Off — Local Market Steady

STOCK MARKET DOWN DRIFT RESUMED

Several Leading Issues Recede to New Bottom Levels for Bear Cycle

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The downward drift in share values was resumed today, after a brief upturn in the early trading, and several prominent issues registered new bottom levels for the bear cycle.

Offerings were again light, but with week-end business and trade reports still of an uninspiring character, there appeared to be nothing to check the decline save occasional short covering.

A ripple of covering passed over the market in the first hour, causing several upturns of a point or so, but thereafter, the trend was generally downward. Tobaccos, coppers, farm implements and rails were notably heavy. J. I. Case common dropped 3, and the preferred about 10, to new lows. The American Tobacco and Liggett & Myers class B shares lost about 2 points. Santa Fe declined 2, and Chesapeake and Ohio, 1, to new bottom prices. Other shares off a point or so to new lows included International Harvester, du Pont, American Smelting and Howe Sound. United States Steel rose 1, then slipped back. General Motors was about steady.

The stock exchange's monthly tabulation of the short position, showing a fair increase for January, may have prompted the early covering. The short position on February 1 was reported at 3,600,265 shares, a gain of 716,193 shares over January 1. While brokerage quarters generally were not inclined to regard the increase in the short position as particularly impressive, the indicated improvement in the market's technical position was welcome.

General Motors' monthly sales report showing sales to consumers for January of 47,942 cars, or slightly below the December volume of 53,588 cars, tended to bear out rumors that the impetus to sales given by the annual automobile shows had quickly spent itself. Reports from the steel trade continued to stress the slackness of automotive material buying as a retarding factor.

The selling of the tobaccos was coupled with brokerage house gossip to the effect that the January cigaret sales figures would show a modest decline. A fresh decline in the wheat market coincided with the selling of farm implements. The farm implement makers are reported to be hampered by slow collections in distressed agricultural areas. The heaviness of coppers reflected last week's shrinkage in the price of the metal.

Gotham Hosiery Planning Merger

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The Gotham Silk Hosiery Company today submitted the stockholders of its subsidiary, the Gotham Knitbac Machine Corporation, a plan whereby the latter would be merged into the parent Gotham company.

The plan of merger calls for exchange of 10 shares of Gotham Knitbac for one share of Gotham Silk Hosiery. Stockholders of the Knitbac Company who prefer cash to stock of the Hosiery Company will be offered $1.08 a share, which is the present book value of Knitbac stock.

General Motors Sales Decrease

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—Total sales to dealers by General Motors Corporation in January, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments, were 74,710 cars and trucks, comparing with 79,529 in December and 89,439 in January, 1931.

Sales to consumers in the United States were 47,942 in January, against 53,588 in December and 61,566 in January, 1931.

California Crude Oil Output Drops

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—Crude oil production in California the first week of February averaged 498,230 barrels daily, a decrease of 720 barrels daily from the preceding week, according to California Oil World.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 8.—Production of East Texas field under the new per well allowable of 75 barrels daily, for 24 hours ended February 6, was about 272,000 barrels of crude oil, compared with 383,092 barrels on Thursday.

Government Wins Shipbuilding Suit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A judgment of $1,160,503 was awarded the government by the United States Court of Claims in the suit brought by the receivers of Standard Shipbuilding Corporation, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for a refund on its income tax. The receivers asked for $340,073 and the government filed a counter claim.

Case Chiefs Silent On Issue Rumors

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP.)—The rumor heard from time to time during the past few months that the J. I. Case Company was considering a bond issue lacks confirmation in official quarters. The story apparently was based on the assumption that the company's cash position has been reduced as a result of difficult collections.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

COTTON SEEKS LOWER LEVEL

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Cotton opened barely steady today at a decline of 1 to 4 points on southern and local selling prompted by relatively easy Liverpool cables. May sold at 6.61.

Trade interests were buyers believed to be partly for foreign account, but the selling continued and prices were barely steady at the end of the first half hour with active months showing net losses of about 4 to 5 points. May sold off to 6.61 and October to 7.17.

Offerings were light later in the morning and the market held steady on a comparatively moderate demand at prices which fluctuated within a range of 2 or 3 points. At midday May was ruling around 6.62 and October 7.20, or 2 to 3 points net lower. There was a report from the south that Japanese houses were still buying but that business generally in the spot markets was lighter with first-hand offers from the interior smaller.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 8.—Cotton: Spot moderate business done; prices 4 points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 6.44; good middling 6.24; strict middling 6.04; middling 5.86; strict low middling 5.49; low middling 5.39; strict good ordinary 5.18; good ordinary 4.89. No receipts. Futures closed quiet: March 5.24; May 5.24; July 5.24; October 5.28; December 5.34; January 5.33.

COPPER PRICE TONE WEAK

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Copper prices eased further to 6¼ cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley at which level some custom smelters were willing to sell, although larger producers adhered to 6½ cents. The easier tone was attributed to absence of consuming interest and only small sales developed at the lower levels. Fair export demand was reported early in the week following a reduction in f. a. q. quotations, but the further easiness in the domestic market widened the parity and foreign buying tapered off.

Moderate consuming demand developed for tin at steady prices, but the market generally remained quiet. Small importers' stocks checked selling pressure.

Demand for lead tapered off after consumers had supplied nearby requirements. Reports of offerings by smaller producers at slight concessions in the western market made buyers cautious although prices here held unchanged.

Antimony advanced sharply owing to seriousness of the Far Eastern situation and absence of offerings from that quarter with consumers interested in obtaining supplies.

Stockholders Asked To Oppose Fisk Plan

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Fisk Rubber Company stockholders' protective committee today sent an appeal to stockholders to resist the proposed reorganization of that company on the ground that with delay they would stand a chance of getting better terms.

In most essentials, the stockholders' protective committee raises objections to the proposed reorganization, similar to those advanced one week ago by John N. Willys, ambassador to Poland and automobile manufacturer.

Declares Javanese Sugar Cut No Aid

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—The Cuban Sugar Institute has received a cable from Java announcing that the amount of Java's production during 1933 will approximate 1,495,000 metric tons of sugar. The institute replied that in their opinion, this amount will not help the statistical situation.

Cuba's crop for the current year will be 3,061,000 tons, of which 2,800,000 tons will represent the present quota for export to the United States.

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER IV.

Ken Sargent didn't take the train any more. Lily Lou suspected that he took the later one. He had told her that the later one was his regular train. He had just taken the 8:02 occasionally before, and then regularly, after he met her.

And now he had decided she wasn't worth getting up half an hour early for. Well, that was all right. She didn't have time to worry about Ken Sargent. Some day, perhaps, but not now . . . Not with all the studying she had to do . . . all the hours and hours of studying. . . .

Once, singing over a gay little French song with the window open to the sweet April evening, she looked up just in time to see the Sargent's roadster go by.

She got up from the piano and went into the kitchen to offer to help May with the ironing.

ALL WROUGHT UP

"I'd much rather you went on with your practicing, honey," May said, touched because Lily Lou was offering to help with Raymond's shirts.

"I can't practice all the time!"

"Why, Lily Lou, you're all wrought up. I tell you, you go to bed and rest instead. Take a book with you if you aren't sleepy, and when I'm through I'll bring you a cup of chocolate and we'll have it together, shall we?"

Lily Lou shook her head. She was touched, too. There was little show of affection between them, though they loved each other dearly. "Please, Maysie—I'd rather iron. You go to bed. I'm too restless."

"You'll be tired in the morning," May predicted. But she relinquished the iron. "I'm about half dead," she admitted.

May was right. Lily Lou was tired in the morning. Tired and listless. When the clock went off she stopped it. Decided to sleep just one minute more. And missed the train.

"He'll think I did it on account of him," she thought, self-consciously, on the way to the station. When she got on the train she slipped into the first vacant seat. She wouldn't look around for him. Opened her magazine. It was an old one, and she had read every story in it. No matter. She opened it at random, started reading, not knowing what she read.

THRILLED BY VOICE

Going from the train to the boat she was sure she heard Ken's voice. She felt her face, her neck, even ears getting red, but she wouldn't turn.

He walked right past her. He was with a man, a big, pompous, heavy-set man, with thick eyebrows, and a darkly weather-beaten, reddish face . . . something familiar about him . . . Oh! It was because there was a sort of resemblance to Ken. . . . Ken's father—no doubt about it. Kentfield Carey Sargent, who owned the steamship line. . . . She caught his eye. He looked at her, with slow, impersonal interest. She turned away.

"Why, Lily You!" There he was, his face all alight with pleasure. She managed to say something to talk back to him brightly. But she was conscious of the older man, Ken's father, watching, and a younger man who was with him, too. Another well dressed man of affairs . . . Ken's kind . . . different from hers. . . .

"That's dad over there," Ken said. There was a look of pride about him.

"I know," Lily Lou said. "I saw him once, long ago, on the lake. And your mother. Though I don't really remember her." All she really remembered was Mrs. Sargent's clothes, very pretty ones, and big hats, and a way she had of laughing and talking out loud, ignoring the people who might be listening, acting as if she were all alone . . . she and her friends . . .

FATHER IMPRESSED

Ken hesitated. He wasn't getting anywhere with Lily Lou, and besides, his father and Mr. Johns would rag him . . .

"See you soon," he said.

Lily Lou smiled, and turned away. It was as if she were dismissing him, instead of he leaving her.

"Oh, a girl I knew when I was a kid. She's going to sing in opera."

Mr. Johns laughed. "Oh, they all are. I never saw a vocal student who wasn't!"

Ken laughed a little too. "I suppose so," he said.

But his father didn't laugh. "I wouldn't be surprised if she did. She knows what she wants, that one. Who's backing her, son?"

"Nobody. Just her folks."

"Rich uncle? Moneyed cousins?"

"I don't think so. I don't know—"

Kentfield Sargent Sr. took another look at Lily Lou. Her profile was turned to him. He saw the flash of her dark, bright beauty, the long, clean line of her limbs, as the wind whipped her skirts. There was a girl . . . in his youth . . . But Ken Junior was another kind, liked his girls soft and fluffy. . . .

It was months before he ever thought of Lily Lou again.

* * *

For Lily Lou things went on the way they always did. The dull routine of the office. Catching trains. Sketchy dinners, hasty dishwashings, sessions with accompanists, lessons, long hours poring over language books, Italian grammars . . .

Discouragement . . . I'll never get anywhere. My lord, when I think of the girls that have all day to work, and all the money they want . . . what earthly use is there of me even trying . . . Besides, I'm sick of it. I can't work all the time . . . I've got to have some fun.

So she'd take a little ride after dinner with May and Raymond, sitting in the back seat of Raymond's automobile with Raymond's dad, and sometimes Irene beside her.

They always went the same way . . . out through town to the highway that wound through San Leandro and Hayward. Then back again, stopping for ice cream cones at one of the creameries . . . vanilla for Mr. Kittridge, strawberry for the others, and a long wait for Irene to make up her mind. . . .

BAD INFLUENCE

Irene was nearly always there. Sometimes she had her friend Lefa Hern with her. Lefa was a bold, black-eyed woman of perhaps 30 . . . May was afraid that her influence wasn't too good for the susceptible Irene. Lefa was always telling about going on week-ends with men. "Perfectly proper!" she'd explain, her black eyes glittering. "We each had our own room. Say, I should stay home, when somebody'll take me to Tahoe!"

One night Irene came in all athrill. She had a tiny diamond in a white-gold setting on her hand. "I'm engaged," she shrilled, "engaged to be married!"

"Who's the lucky man?" May asked a little coldly.

"Who? Bill Oakley of course . . . May! After all I've told you!"

Bill Oakley was the slim youth Irene met last summer in Los Angeles. She'd talked enough about him. But she had talked about so many. Even embroidering O's on her guest towels hadn't impressed them much . . . She had embroidered so many other letters before.

"Will you give me my wedding?" she rattled on. "Can I be married here? I want a home wedding. Just a simple, sweet, home wedding. A few friends, and the family—" Her nose was pink with excitement. Her eyeglasses glistened.

FANCIES BLOOM

May sat up on her couch. She was impressed at last. Her voice was dreamy. . . . "We could have it in the parlor, by putting a bell in the bay window. And I suppose we could have a supper . . . creamed chicken would be easy, and I could get the cake made . . . how many guests do you think, Irene?"

Lily Lou joined in the congratulations, admired the ring, listened all over again to the story of the meeting, the courtship, Irene's plans.

So it wasn't imagination. Someone really loved Irene. Someone had asked her to marry him. Irene with the collar bones, and the sniffles, and the pop-out pale blue eyes.

By the first of May even Raymond was insisting that she go home to the lake for a rest, take her two weeks' vacation early.

For there was no longer any mistaking it. Lily Lou was a sick girl.

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing, just 20 and pretty, is studying for an operatic career, but dreams of romance. One morning she meets wealthy Ken Sargent, who used to spend his summers in her home town. He is attracted by her beauty. Lily Lou's sister, May, with whom she boards, objects to Ken, calls his family "snobs." When Lily Lou tells Ken she cannot see him so often he leaves in anger.

Now Go On

ALL IN A DAY — By MARK HELLINGER

IT'S A BEAUTIFUL story of gratitude that Paul Preston forwards for your amusement. Just a tender little thing that proves the world is still filled with humans who have a real sense of appreciation. With the papers printing nothing but crime, depression and war news, I think the time is ripe for just such a tale.

John Smith — to provide him with a really fascinating name—is in a business that necessitates the use of a private automobile. He covers quite a bit of territory in the course of a day and his machine is most important to him. If he had to use taxis, he would go broke in short order.

Several weeks ago John parked his car in front of an establishment in the Bronx and went inside to transact some business. When he came out his car was gone. The poor guy's heart fell to his boots. Times were mighty tough—and now, with the car stolen, his future looked as bright as Mr. Hoover's chances for a second term. He carried no insurance on the auto and unless it was recovered he faced a total loss.

There was but one thing to do, and Mr. Smith did it in nothing flat. He raced to the nearest police station and notified the proper authorities. An alarm was sent out. And, two hours later, the machine was found. But how it was found!

The young gentleman who had stolen the car had attempted to drive straight through a telegraph pole. Sadly enough, the attempt had been unsuccessful.

John Smith went to look at his car even as the doctors in a nearby hospital were looking at the crook's injuries. The machine proved to be in worse shape than the thief. After a few days in the hospital the crook was turned over to the police again. They immediately booked him on a charge of grand larceny.

Meanwhile, the prisoner got in touch with his family. Said family consisted of a father and two brothers, and it didn't take them long to find out that John Smith was the owner of the car and that he would be the individual who would press the charges.

So they came to Mr. Smith one beautiful afternoon and unfolded as pretty a sob story as you have ever heard.

"My boy didn't realize what he was doing," wailed the father. "He was probably a trifle drunk for the first time in his life. How was he to know that this terrible thing was going to happen and that he would bring disgrace upon a family name that has always commanded nothing but respect?. Oh, what have I done to deserve such a calamity as this?

"Don't you think my boy has been punished enough? Would you want him to be sent away to a jail that would make a criminal out of him for the rest of his life? Please think it over and help us. Please. For the sake of a father who will never be able to live through the shame."

And so it went on for the better part of an hour. The brothers chipped in with their tearful contributions whenever it seemed necessary, and Mr. Smith was growing a trifle dizzy from from the pressure of it all. The power of pressure is a mighty thing—and before the family left John Smith had agreed to do all he could to have the charges dismissed.

He kept his word, which begins to show you how tender this little story really is. He went to the Assistant District Attorney who was in charge of the case, and told a little white lie. He said that he had really forgotten something. In the excitement of the accident he had neglected to inform the police that he knew the other young man quite well and that he had honestly given him permission to drive the car.

In other words, he changed the story completely. The District Attorney knew he was lying to save the crook, and Mr. Smith almost got himself into a mess. But, after all, it didn't mean very much. There were no important names involved, and Mr. Smith's doings were his own business. Accordingly, the case was dropped.

You can imagine the joy of the boy's family when the lad was released. They showered Mr. Smith with all the praise in the world. And you can readily understand that Mr. Smith felt something of a glow on his own account. After all, he had saved a youth from a criminal career. He had been a big man. It had cost him a sweet penny to have his car repaired, but the boy's family had promised to reimburse him for that. All in all, then, there had been but little harm done. And Mr. Smith inherited the warmth that comes with the enactment of a generous deed.

There isn't much more to this tender tale of a grateful youth. Except to tell you that, two weeks later, Mr. Smith was on the wrong end of a heavy lawsuit. The lad who had stolen the car sued him for damages sustained while driving the machine. And Mr. Smith has no comeback because he went on record as saying that he lent the car to the youth of his own free will!

That's what I like. Short stories that prove the world is still filled with people who have a real sense of appreciation . . .

* * *

* * *

"I IMAGINE the yarn goes back many, many years," writes J. Haney, of Great Lakes, Ill., "but one of the boys told it the other night during a prohibition discussion and I thought you might care to revive it. With the younger generation drinking as much as it does, the story seems particularly appropriate.

"The German owner of a small brewery was once approached by a female social worker who began to ask him questions. She finally asked him if it were true that many men got drunk on beer. The German shrugged his shoulders and replied in the following fashion:

" 'Well, I'll tell you about myself. When I get up in the morning, I go to my ice box and drink two quarts of beer. After breakfast, I get ready for the day with two more quarts of beer. Then I go to my brewery and sample the beer from the three vats. I always drink three or four quarts of beer before lunch.

" 'After lunch I enjoy a quart or two of nice, cold beer. During the afternoon, when my friends visit me, I generally drink five or six quarts in order to be sociable. Supper with me is just like lunch. I always have two quarts before the meal and two after it. In the evening I read my papers and drink some nice, cold beer. Just before retiring I have two quarts as a nightcap. And then I go to sleep.'

"The woman gasped.

" 'That's amazing,' she cried. 'And you stay sober too! Can't a man ever get drunk on beer?'

" 'Well,' replied the German, without batting an eye, 'I suppose he can—if he wants to make a pig of himself.' " . . .

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS Junior Komic Club

Uncle Bob and Betty, those popular radio artists, have become the children's favorite entertainers. Thousands of children listen in on WCAE on Sundays at 12:30 to hear Uncle Bob read the Sun-Tele Komic Section to little Betty.

Now they will have an opportunity to hear their friends Uncle Bob and Betty three times a week—on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 6 o'clock, and on Sunday at 12:30 noon, WCAE.

We used to think that only girls liked cutouts, but there are just as many boys saving the cutouts of Casper, Toots, Buttercup and all the other characters in this feature. One character is published every Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph Komic Section. When all the figures have appeared, ample wardrobes will be furnished. Suits and hats for Casper, dresses for Toots and Buttercup—watch for them!

There was a big stage show at the Schenley Chapter meeting Saturday. The dancers were pupils of Jean Boyle, who directed the program. The following children took part: Dolly Michalski, June Klinkner, Myra Wagner, Chucky Schmidt, Helen Rose, Billy Price, Dorothy Smith, Mary Virginia Rehmann, Jimmy Edwards, Betty Noah, Ralph Saline, Evelyn Ragnelli, Betty Jane Long and Audrey Long.

Managers of the Warner neighborhood theaters in which the Junior Komic Club members meet, have announced valentine contests. Attractive prizes will be awarded to the prettiest, the funniest and the most novel valentines designed and made by the children.

If you would like to become a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, go to the nearest Warner Theater at the time announced for the club meeting. The manager will give you an application blank to fill out, and you will then receive your membership card and button.

South Hills: Helen Kopper, Walter Cherry, Jane Edmunds, Laura Daniels, Virginia Millard, Rhea Cohen, Billy Allen, Phyllis Thomas, Jean Guthridge.

Grand (Greensburg): Robert Lyon, Domenick Spino.

Enright: Jose Garver, Joseph Dwyer, Fred Dalo.

Arsenal: Betty Young.

Manor: Lawrence Shinbaum, James Feldman.

Cameraphone: Joseph Amend, Bill Gregory, Rodney Keith.

Plaza: Fred Jessop.

Harris (Etna): Eileen Michaelis, Clara Ribarick.

Prince (Ambridge): Julius Stawowski, Joseph Zukowski, George Zunis, Anthony Prosio, Steve Pushai.

Put Them on Record

Legislative Candidates Should Be Asked How They Stand in Regard to the Blue Law.

Candidates for the Legislature are announcing in various parts of the state. The primary will be held on April 26, so all the entries will be filed before long.

Among those who have announced is Burgess Elmer W. Squibb, of Birdsboro, who seeks a third term in the House. Squibb attracted attention at the last regular session by the interest he showed in the Sunday baseball bill.

When it came up for a vote he was seriously ill with a heart ailment. Nevertheless he called for an ambulance and would have gone to Harrisburg if his physician had not intervened and forbidden it.

Squibb, it was said, would have voted for the bill. If he is sent to the Legislature again he probably will have another chance to do something for Sunday baseball, and other forms of innocent entertainment as well.

It seems certain that repeal of the Blue Law will be one of the live issues. The interference of Blue Law zealots with Sunday movie shows for the benefit of the unemployed has aroused the public, and the demand has gone forth that the ban be lifted.

Every candidate for the Legislature should be forced by the pressure of public opinion to tell how he stands on this matter. If they are all placed on record before the primary, the voters will only have themselves to blame if Sunday movies and baseball games continue to be branded as criminal.

Honoring Washington

It is Not Necessary to Be a Member of an Organization To Help Commemorate the Bicentennial.

A cursory reading of the Sun-Telegraph Saturday in search of items relating to the George Washington bicentennial disclosed three:

Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, moderator and stated clerk of the Presbyterian General Assembly, has called upon all churches of that denomination to participate in the Washington commemoration.

Dr. John W. Oliver, of the history department of the University of Pittsburgh, will speak on the Washington bicentennial at the meeting of the Pitt Women's Association Wednesday.

Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, announces plans for the celebration of Washington's Birthday.

Many such items, involving many organizations, may be expected during this bicentennial year. Religious, educational, patriotic, civic, commercial and fraternal bodies are all to take a hand in commemorating the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth.

But what of persons who are not members of such organizations? How can they, too, pay tribute to the great patriot?

There will be public meetings to which they will be welcome.

But an even better tribute would be to read a good biography of Washington, and so become familiar with the American principles for which he stood.

The best tribute of all, that an individual can pay to Washington, is to love and serve America.

Cross at Crossings

Half of Adult Traffic Fatalities Last Year Were Due To Crossing Between Intersections.

But even if we make the most of these improvements, the record is still depressing and emphasizes the need for greater care, greater care on the part both of motorists and pedestrians.

There are many things to be considered in preventing traffic accidents, but the Sun-Telegraph will content itself at this time with calling attention to only one of them, and that is the importance of not walking in the street except at places intended for pedestrians.

Fifty per cent of the adult pedestrians who lost their lives in motor accidents last year were killed while crossing streets between intersections.

They thought, of course, that they were taking no risk. And it seemed worth their while to save a few seconds by crossing between the intersections rather than to walk a few yards. Impatience killed them.

Curb your impatience when it becomes necessary to cross a street. Walk the few yards to the intersection. Do not fret over the loss of a few seconds.

CROSS AT CROSSINGS.

Friends of Justice

The passion for justice is widespread. It bobs up unexpectedly again and again. Witness these incidents:

Thomas Zima and Peter Muselin, of Woodlawn, serving five years in prison for sedition, were pardoned last week. The man who worked hardest to have them pardoned was one of the last persons in the world that one would have expected to work so hard for them. It was Charles Denby, Jr., son-in-law of Senator David A. Reed, and a man whose wealth, traditions, social position and family connections would naturally have prejudiced him against Reds.

No doubt he detests Communism, yet his passion for justice led him to come forward voluntarily and without pay to plead for the two Woodlawn men when he learned they had been sent to prison solely because they had advocated Communism. It seemed to Mr. Denby that the men's right to freedom of speech had been infringed by their imprisonment.

Then there was the case of the jury in Criminal Court last Friday who, in violation of precedent, ordered the lawyer in a perjury case to pay the costs, holding that he, and not the nominal plaintiff, had instigated the prosecution. That, too, showed a passion for justice.

Of the same pattern was Judge Elder W. Marshall's action in suddenly halting a Criminal Court case in which the defendant complained of having been beaten by the police and ordering the District Attorney to investigate the charge. Many judges would have felt that they were not called upon to act.

The Minute Man of '32

By Nelson Harding

When war clouds loom across the deep
This patriot is not asleep;

Already fixed, our soldiers set,
Declaring that, in all events,
His weapons are our best defense.

Songs We Remember

Who was it that said "Women and music should not be dated?" But, alas, a woman is dated by music!

* * *

You can always tell a woman's age by her favorite song. Wouldn't you love to know what MINE is? Well, I'll tell you. It's Just a Little Love—a Li-i-i-tul ki-iss!" Now you can count back—and count up. That came out in 1915! When men were satisfied with "just a little," and didn't expect you to fall on their necks with rapture and gratitude for a chicken salad or an English muffin and a champagne cocktail.

A woman can henna her hair, lift her face and buy a complexion, but the song in her heart—the song she hums when nobody's listening—is the song that gilded and glorified her youth. The enchanted song that brings back glamorous moonlight nights and silver, lilac-scented twilights—when things got into her heart, before it got all calloused.

All of which is inspired by a new anthology, entitled "Famous Songs and Their Stories," which has just reached me. Ah, those songs of "The Sacred Seventies," "The Elegant Eighties" and "The Naughty Nineties!" They are a Complete History of Modern Love! From "Sweet Genevieve" down to "Button Up Your Overcoat!"

I wonder if any of the songs that come out of "Tin Pan Alley," today, will live as long as the old songs in this anthology. I wonder if sax-appeal is as potent as sentiment, after all? Will "The Vagabond Lover" outlive Rudy Vallee as long as "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms"—outlived Tom Moore? Will any of the crooners' ditties outlive "Oh Promise Me!" and "The Rosary" and "White Wings?"

* * *

The trouble with most modern songs is that they are written to SELL, not to SING. Their rhymes are execrable, their rhythm is impossible, and they have no melody. Outside of that, they're ALL RIGHT!

* * *

Ella Wheeler Wilcox said a book-ful, when she wrote:

* * *

"Unless he writes from a full, warm HEART, he gives us but little pleasure.

* * *

"Unless we can feel his heart throb through the music he plays us!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Rising early and a note from Will Rogers in Bombay, an autographed volume from Valentine Williams and a bronze ash tray sculpted by McClelland Barclay. Like Christmas. Leisurely through town, meeting Octavus Roy and Inez Cohen and the Carl Brandts.

On way to my chambers talked to Willard Huntington Wright, whom I have not seen since he became the internationally celebrated S. S. Van Dine and twitted him about his pedantically pointed beard. With my wife to the Messmore Kendalls, seeing there the Conde Nasts, Stanley Rinehart, Bill Hamilton and Teddy Roseau.

In the evening to a Cosmopolitan magazine dinner, sitting with Frank Sullivan, Gene Tunney and Grantland Rice. And Rupert Hughes, Jim Flagg and Rube Goldberg indulged the wittiest forensics ever I heard. So out at 4 a. m. and walked home in the rosy blush of an entrancing dawn.

* * *

New York's most aristocratic floor walker is a snow-white-haired gentleman, straight as an arrow—a cameo of the long ago and remindful of Capt. Jim Churchill, of cafe fame. He is of noble Kentucky lineage, a member of the exclusive Pendennis Club, and possessor of two enormous fortunes. For years he graced the dark-timbered splendor of a now bankrupt avenue hat store and symbolizes even in a clerkship the last holdout against riches.

* * *

Speaking of hat shops, the biggest individual hat buyer is Aubrey L. Eads, one of the fashion plates. He buys more than 50 a year, an average of one a week. When he finds "time on his hands" he goes shopping for a hat.

That deservedly best selling book "Forever and Ever" bears the name of Warren Spencer but is really the pseudonym of Will C. and Nell Lengel. Mr. Lengel is associate editor of Cosmopolitan and in relaxing moments he and his wife plotted and wrote the volume that brought a rousing gush of unsolicited praise from Robert Hichens, Theodore Dreiser, Rupert Hughes and Galsworthy. It is a superb novel.

* * *

Mr. Lengel, incidentally, was once a newspaper man himself, being an alumnus of that famous experimental ground for the literati—Col. Nelson's Kansas City Star.

Add odd jobs. Women in mourning who attend funerals, park cars near mortuary chapels and solicit passengers, at $1 a throw, to ride to the cemetary.

* * *

Leslie Howard, matinee idol of the moment, is eddied into an alcove with a female bore. She opines the weather is almost freezing. "And that reminds me," comments Howard, lopping off, "I must bring the brass monkeys in."

* * *

Broadway suffers the loss of three conspicuous playboys this winter. Billy Leeds, Ben Finney, Jr., and Sid Smith shoved off for the Orient to enjoy big game hunting and each, as the legend goes, is carrying the torch.

* * *

The "lung block," long a standby of the sob sisters, is to go. It was so named because of a stupendous death rate among its miserable crannies. Bounded by Market, Hamilton, Cherry and Catherine streets, it is regarded as the worst of all metropolitan slums. In place of the ancient rookeries there will spring up model tenements, already called "White Collar City," where small wage earners may live in the atmosphere of cleanliness and sunshine. In the same neighborhood Al Smith played "duck-on-a-rock" when a boy.

* * *

The Boston dashes in with the frisk of a tornado from a walk, rolls on the carpet, stretches and as quickly as I write this is twitching in dreams of a chase. That's the way we should handle this bugaboo called depression.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You say you're never going to believe in anyone again?

Look how your friend failed you?

You had believed in that friend, as you believed in God! You had believed that she was incapable of any meanness, any dishonesty, any vicious or vulgar act.

And then, suddenly, without the slightest regard for your feelings, she ran amuck—did everything you would have sworn she wouldn't do—and broke your heart.

So now you'll never believe in anything again; for what's the use of believing, if such a friend can betray you? Nobody's going to fool you again! You're going to distrust everyone, after this. You even hate God; for surely you didn't deserve this blow.

It's too cruel that you should have to suffer so terribly, just because you had a beautiful faith. Faith like yours should be rewarded—not punished—and if it isn't rewarded, there can't be any justice anywhere!

Is that the way you're thinking? Probably. We all think that way at least once in a life time. But it's wrong!

In the first place, your friend hasn't failed YOU. She has simply failed to live up to the ideal which you had selected for her. But why should she live up to your ideal?

It is beautiful and desirable to have an ideal, and to try to live up to it oneself; but it is silly and unfair to hang that ideal upon another person and demand that they shall live up to it.

Unhappily, much that we call love and friendship is simply an expression of our conceit.

We do not love our friends for what they are. WE LOVE THEM FOR WHAT WE WANT THEM TO BE. WE LOVE THEM BECAUSE THEY GRATIFY A PERSONAL NEED.

Sometimes they mirror our own personalities. Sometimes they express qualities which we lack, and so satisfy our sense of inadequacy. For this reason a quiet man will marry a dashing woman; or a reserved, unpopular woman will marry an enthusiastic friendly man.

So we choose our friends as we choose our chairs—because they fit our curves or our hollows. Then when they refuse to fit; when they insist on being THEMSELVES, instead of a projection of OURSELVES, we get mad. We say they have betrayed us. We say we'll never believe in anything again.

THAT'S PLAIN PEEVE.

It's noble to believe in one's friend; to believe in his essential fineness and honesty, no matter what he does; to grant him the right to act according to his true nature.

Such an act is REAL FAITH. Nothing can ever destroy faith like that. It will always be its own rich reward.

But it isn't noble to "Believe" in a friend only as long as he does what you think he should do. That's simply peevish egotism. And if "faith" like that is betrayed, you have it coming to you.

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

Text For Today And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord.—Acts, xxii:16.

A Truce to Bunk: A Nation, the Starving

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

These are days when political bunk is intolerable. In normal times, when the economic and social machinery of modern civilization is running smoothly, and everyone is reasonably satisfied, men aspiring to national leadership may indulge in platitudes and inarticulate rhetoric without inviting a rebuke, but these are days of serious crises.

It is a boast of ours in America that whenever a crisis comes destiny brings forth a leader to meet it. It always has. But the choice of the leader has never been made in the dark. Never have politicians and statesmen, and frequently they are one and the same thing, indulged in such plain talk as in critical periods of our history; never have they been more daring or frank. And the people, hearing them, determine which they will follow—and always the choice has been made because of the positions they have taken.

The campaign this year must be one of straight thinking and plain speaking, for no class of people, all suffering and a little alarmed, has the patience for mere bunk. The feeling is that he who is too cautious as an aspirant will not be sufficiently courageous as a responsible leader in power. The American people have a right to know where men stand.

No Repetition of the Hoover Campaign

Four years ago everyone knew where Smith stood on everything; and no one knew for certain where Mr. Hoover stood on anything, except that he stood for a "chicken in every pot" and "sanitary plumbing" and radios, and electric washing machines.

In North Carolina he stood for prohibition and in New York it was whispered that he stood against it; and he hid behind the promise of a commission to investigate. But in 1928 "business" was "booming," as the superficial thought, and never has the American appetite for bunk been so keen as it was then.

But never has the popular impatience with bunk or double meanings been so profound as it is today.

The campaign this year must find leaders getting down to cases, discussing principles, pitching the argument on the higher plan. There can be no repetition of the Hoover campaign of 1928.

Hoover's Record Now Speaks for Him

No one yet knows where Mr. Hoover stands on anything, positively, unless it is on prohibition. He is satisfied with existing conditions and wants no change. But it does not matter much this time whether he expresses himself articulately or not; his record speaks for him.

But he has the advantage of being in.

The Democratic candidate, whoever he may be, is out and must make it plain to the people why he should be in. He must have a policy, clearly defined, and based on principles, and must battle for it militantly, not gingerly. Unless he shows by his frankness and earnestness that he believes in himself, he cannot expect a disillusioned public to believe in him.

No Candidate Can Pussyfoot

There are now three candidates in the field avowedly; for while Mr. Baker has not announced and probably will not, his recent statement is tatamount to a declaration. He rendered a service in eliminating the league as a possible issue; and now Gov. Roosevelt, who has refrained thus far from expressions on national policy, has just taken a position definitely on three things.

He is not in favor of entering the League of Nations.

He is not in favor of the "cancellation" of the debts.

And he is against the tariff act which has contributed mightily to the economic chaos of the world and the loss of our foreign markets.

Before, and long before, the Democratic convention meets, it will be found that no candidate can pussyfoot his way to the nomination; each must fight his way by standing definitely on the issues that are real.

Must Know the Attitude Of Candidates

It is imperative that the American people know the attitude of candidates on the transfer of the debts of 14 nations from the people who "hired the money" and used it to the taxpayers of this country. There is a droll unanimity among the debtor nations that the solution of all problems demands that we pay their debts—pay them by adding billions in taxation to a people seriously burdened now, whose government faces an enormous deficit.

Neville Chamberlain, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, has officially announced in the Commons that this is the expectation and the policy of the British government.

M. Laval announced it on his return to Paris.

It is the policy of Europe—and it is not the policy of the United States; and America will not knowingly put in power any man or party that favors the policy here.

Had we gone to Paris, and, after the fashion of the debtor nations, grabbed German territory, and exacted reparations, something might be said for the Chamberlain plan; but we took no reparations and we took not one inch of territory, and we are not going to pay eleven billion dollars for the privilege of taking nothing.

Nothing Has Been Done For the Desperate Millions

For months we have said in these columns that the problem of human beings who are suffering and starving because of economic conditions for which they are not responsible, cannot be indefinitely ignored. Had Mr. Hoover had the time last summer, when the administration was distressed over the unfortunates in Europe, to summon Congress in extra session for the floating of a prosperity loan to furnish work, there would be no need for appropriations from the Federal Treasury for direct relief to the unemployed, their woman and children.

Had this and the previous administration not prevented for three years the enactment of the Wagner Employment Stabilization Bill, the work could have been launched immediately.

But the administration has utterly ignored the human equation; and if government is concerned with banks, railroads, and the profits of Big Business to the exclusion of people, it is a new wrinkle in the American concept of the purposes of government.

Nothing has been done for the desperate millions; private charity has collapsed; cities, counties and townships have exhausted their resources—and there still is the vast army of women and children, hungry, starving, shivering, evicted from shelter.

Just as we predicted six months ago, congressional opinion, regardless of party, is veering to the necessity for direct federal aid. Senator La Follette proposes $375,000,000; Senator Wagner would double the amount and loan half to the states.

It is human; it is decent; it is a duty; and we would like to see anyone stand up and denounce to the people an action necessary to prevent the starvation and suffering of millions of women and children who are victims of the stupidities and greed of economic policies they could not control.

Wise Words

—La Bruyere.

How much easier our work would be if we put forth as much effort trying to improve the quality of it as most of us do trying to find excuses for not properly attending to it. —Ballinger.

—Pope.
